

Opera Contest Over Ducks is Sample of New Deal Confusion

WASHINGTON — It is the conclusion of every Washington observer—whether he is for or against Franklin Roosevelt—that no Administration in years has suffered so much internal confusion as the New Deal.

This has two causes:

1. Roosevelt has undertaken a tremendous program in a relatively short time, and the throwing together of emergency bureaus and emergency programs necessarily has resulted in considerable confusion.
2. The man who is the axis of this program, its guiding genius, the dynamo behind it, time after time has added to the confusion by reversing himself or giving conflicting ideas to his Cabinet officers.

This second point was strikingly driven home the other day to a close friend of the President's who was sitting in on some of his private conferences.

Ducks vs. Cattle

One of these conferences was with Secretary Harold Ickes, who had worked out a plan for taking part of the national domain now lying idle—and turning it over to grazing land under the new Grazing Act.

"Excellent idea," said the President. An executive decree to execute it was ordered.

A day later came J. N. (Ding) Darling, famous cartoonist, who deserted his drawing easel to protect wild game under the New Deal as chief of the Bureau of Biological Survey. Mr. Darling brought to the President an idea directly the opposite of Mr. Ickes'.

He argued that the use of the national domain as grazing land would destroy the feeding grounds of his ducks. He had particularly at heart the future of trumpeter swans, a species rapidly becoming extinct in the United States. Darling demanded that the national domain be kept intact not invaded by sheep and cattle.

"Absolutely right," said the President.

Both Ickes and Darling left the President with the impression that he was in complete agreement with them. The result is that the question of ducks and grazing land has been tangled up ever since.

Master Mind

Several Congressmen and journalists visiting the United States Naval Academy at Annapolis recently have been impressed by the mentality of Rear Admiral David Sellers, its commandant and directing genius.

Admiral Sellers' chief passion, as far as Annapolis is concerned, seems to be brighter buttons and more movies extolling the virtues of being a midshipman.

Scholarship, apparently, is a subject with which the Admiral is not greatly troubled.

He has already promoted several motion pictures depicting the romance of a midshipman's life; and the Hollywood executives who smashed up in the plane that killed Senator Cutting were enroute to do another.

"Tell me," inquires the Admiral of visiting journalists, "how can I get another big picture concern interested in the Academy?"

Master's Voice

Camera-shy Secretary Frances Perkins, ever on the alert to enlarge her bureaucratic powers, is insistent that the proposed new National Labor Relations Board, which would be created by the Wagner Labor Disputes Bill, be placed under the jurisdiction of her department.

LOWER HOUSE TO BALLOT ON NEW FUEL TAX

Taxation Committee
Bows to Pressure, Votes
Measure to Floor

VOTE IS WEDNESDAY

BITTINGER TRIUMPHS IN COMMITTEE FIGHT

COLUMBUS, May 14—Responding toward pressure exerted by Speaker J. Freer Bittinger (D) of Ashland, the house taxation committee today reported out and recommended passage of the Uible bill to increase the liquid fuel tax one cent per gallon for the remainder of the year.

Proceeds from the proposed increase, estimated at $7,000,000, would be used for the payment of old age pensions during the last six months of this year.

Received Just Enough
The liquid fuel tax bill, sponsored by Democratic floor leader Frank Uible of Cleveland, had twice previously been turned down by the taxation committee. It received barely enough votes this time to be recommended for passage. The vote was 13 to 7.

Speaker Bittinger said the Uible bill will be placed on the house calendar for a vote tomorrow.

Several members who voted to report the bill out served notice that they would vote against it on the floor and that their favorable vote in committee was merely for the purpose of permitting the full membership to make a decision on the measure.

Bittinger Victory
It was an indisputable personal triumph for Speaker Bittinger, but administration critics including Rep. Christy charged that the "steam roller" had been used freely in lining up committee votes.

Relief for Pickaway-co teachers amounting to $25,824 would be immediately provided if the state senate passes the Wright bill, recommended today by the senate finance committee.

The bill backed by Rep. Harry Wright (D) of Logan, would provide for payment of unpaid teachers. It has already passed the house by a 95-3 ballot and is expected to come to a vote in the upper house Wednesday.

An Emergency Bill
It would enable school boards to borrow against anticipated receipts from the sales tax during the last half of 1935. It is an emergency measure and would be effective as soon as signed by the governor.

ACTRESS LOSER IN SUIT FOR $500,000

LONDON, May 14—Pretty Angela Joyce, the one-time "Goddess in the clouds" who came down to earth to sue Lord Revelstoke for breach of promise, lost her $500,000 suit against him in Kings bench court today.

Only a few minutes of deliberation were needed for a jury of nine men and three women to decide in favor of the 28-year-old British peer and they so informed the court, adding that it would be up to Angela to pay the costs of the proceedings.

Justice Swift, who a short time earlier had blasted her case by ruling that a man doesn't obligate himself to matrimony merely by calling a girl "the sweetest I have ever met", returned a judgment in accordance with the jury's verdict.

"Million-Dollar" Legs Prove Handicap to Hollywood Girls

LILLIAN KILGANNON, stand-in for Mae West, Marlene Dietrich, Claudette Colbert and other Hollywood stars.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal.—You would think, offhand, that a shapely young brunet with "million dollar legs" would have smooth sailing in Hollywood.

But Lillian Kilgannon, the beauty who has "em," finds that they (the legs) are a handicap to a career in the movies.

For the past two years she has been a "stand-in" for Mae West, Marlene Dietrich, Claudette Colbert and other celebrated Hollywood stars. She has stood under the blazing hot white lights while the cameraman has lighted up to "shoot" the scene. Then she has stepped out, to permit the player to perform for the camera.

Never Acts
"Sure, I'd like to be a star," said Miss Kilgannon, the daughter of a studio policeman. "Who wouldn't? And no one has a better chance to learn than I. I'm here on the set at all times. I've never done any acting—but I'm learning, merely by observing. I watch the star and listen to the director."

"And there are other times, too. The stars are all good to me. Miss West insisted that I stand in for her on her latest picture. She wouldn't have anyone else. And everyone is so generous with presents. I'm saving up for a trip to Ireland. I've never been there—and there isn't a better place for a Kilgannon."

Miss Kilgannon has appeared before the camera aside from her stand-in capacity. Her legs are so shapely and beautiful that whenever a scene is taken that requires particularly beautiful legs, she invariably is called.

A Paradox
And many Hollywoodites declare that she will continue to be in such demand for "show's" of her legs that her talents as an actress may be sacrificed.

ITALY NEARING OPEN WARFARE

Diplomatic Relations With Abyssinia Near Breaking Point

ADDIS ABABA, May 14—Rupture of diplomatic relations between Italy and Abyssinia was expected momentarily here today as the dispute between the two nations reached an extremely critical stage.

Diplomatic circles were outspoken in admitting the gravity of the situation, as reports reached here of continued Italian mobilization. Abyssinian authorities fear hostilities will be launched as soon as the rainy season ends.

The population seethed with excitement. Foreign residents expressed anxiety over their future security.

LONDON, May 14—Members of Italy's military classes of 1910 and 1912, described as "technicians" were called to the colors today, according to a Reuter dispatch from Rome.

The number of troops involved was not stated. The government, the message said, has no intention as yet of mobilizing the remainder of these classes, which would total about 200,000 men.

Trouble at Other Plants to End, too

TOLEDO, May 14—Finus was written today to the Toledo Chevrolet motor strike—the walkout three weeks ago today that spread in a few days to 33,000 men and threatened to engulf the entire automobile industry.

All 2,340 men who were employed at the plant when the strike started were called today to report for work. In a statement issued shortly before noon, Alfred G. Culliver, new manager of the plant, instructed all workers to report tomorrow, the day shift at 6 a. m. and the night shift at 3:30 p. m.

TOLEDO, May 14—Workers were sent into the strike-closed Toledo Chevrolet Motors corp. plant today to fire the huge furnaces in preparation for resumption of production, possibly tomorrow.

The move marked the end of one of the major automobile industry disputes that resulted in more than 30,000 General Motors corp. employees being thrown into unemployment for the last three weeks.

Striking members of the auto workers' federal union here voted late last night, 732 to 385, to return to their jobs.

PETITIONERS ASK HIGHWAY RETAINED

Residents of Kingston-pk Protest Addition to State Road System

Twenty-eight residents of the Kingston-pk and owners of properties adjoining the highway presented a petition to the county commissioners Monday urging that the county retain the road and not have it placed under the state highway system.

Although it was not cited in the petition the reason for the objection was that the state would force the property owners to move their fences back to provide a wider right-of-way.

The petition was circulated and signed first by Harry Montelius.

The county "dads" although they took no record vote intimated that if there was such opposition to the highway becoming state-controlled they would not even recommend to the state that the highway be added to the state system. There are several other roads under consideration now.

Irwin to Ask Stillman To Choose Him Director; Sentiment Growing Here

The Pickaway-co relief "mud-die" remained at a standstill today with a group of nearly 200 men, women and children "hunger marchers" expecting to visit the office of C. C. Stillman, federal relief administrator, to urge him to "do something about conditions in Pickaway-co."

The marchers reached Columbus this morning after spending the night in a warehouse at the Hartman farm. While they escaped the heavy rain of Monday night many were soaked to the skin by the down-pour early Tuesday.

A number of children of relief families were taken out of school by their parents who took them along on the march to the state capital. Both Stillman and Governor Martin Davey were quoted in Columbus newspapers as saying they would grant interviews to any representatives the marchers might select.

Irwin Has Petition
Another move was under way here with Howard Irwin, choice of the commissioners to retain his relief director's job, started to circulate a petition to be handed to Mr. Stillman urging that Irwin be appointed director of relief under a federal administration. The commissioners last week objected to Irwin's being ousted by Stillman who sent W. L. Utley, Cleveland, here to succeed the local man.

It is doubtful that no matter how strong the petition is that Mr. Irwin presents to Stillman whether the administrator will retain him as relief director since he has declared that "federal money must be supervised by a federal appointee." It is possible, however, that Stillman may add Irwin to his office then send him to the local job. In a large majority of counties in the state relief directors are foreign to the county.

The commissioners took no action.

PLANS TO ASK 'MARCHERS' TO GO BACK HOME

County Must Consent to Supervision, He Declares Today

INSISTS ON UTLEY

Work May Go on Anyway, He Says

Pickaway-co officials must consent to federal relief supervision if federal funds are to be spent there, C. C. Stillman, federal administrator for Ohio, announced today as he awaited a visit from relief clients of Pickaway-co.

Stillman declared he will promise the visiting relief delegation the same share of relief funds they have received if county officials consent to Winfred Utley as county relief administrator. Utley was sent here last week as county director to succeed Howard Irwin, but county commissioners refused to permit him to take over the office.

Advise to Return

Stillman said he would advise the relief clients to return to Circleville and await the decision of county commissioners on the county relief administration. If commissioners wish to take over direct relief administration, the state will continue its share of the work relief program.

Pickaway-co this month received $10,474 for direct relief and $3,057 for work relief projects from the state administration.

No federal funds will be allocated for direct relief next month if the county elects to take over its own relief burden, but the work relief appropriations will continue as long as suitable projects are proposed in this area, Stillman stated.

Utley will come to Circleville to administer the work relief program and the commissioners may retain Irwin as direct relief director if they wish, he added.

Stillman today said he will not push the commissioners for a decision on their relief problem.

"We will wait until they decide what share of the relief burden they wish to take over before deciding definitely on a program for Pickaway-co," he said.

He explained the future relief policy for Pickaway-co depends entirely on county officials.

They may assume charge of their own direct relief, select their own officials and spend their own funds.

If they wish to continue the work relief projects, the state administration will continue to allocate funds for employing relief labor on these projects, provided material is furnished by the applicants and the projects are "worth while," he said.

400 LOSE LIVES IN MINE DISASTER

SHANGHAI, May 14—Four hundred men today lost their lives in one of the most appalling mine disasters in history.

The miners, trapped far underground in the Tzschew coal mine in Shantung province, were drowned when digging operations tapped a deeply submerged spring.

The water welled through the shafts in a swift torrent, flooding the whole mine in only 40 minutes.

Electric motors running the pumps and elevators were short-circuited, hampering rescue efforts. By the time emergency apparatus was working, officials found it too late to save anyone and rescue attempts were abandoned.

One Japanese superintendent was drowned, all the others being coolies.

CHAMP JOKES, ROUSES IRE OF 'GARDEN' BOSS

Baer Reported to Have Referred to Braddock Bout as "Joke"

By DAVIS J. WALSH

NEW YORK, May 14—One writer has had him roistering through the Harlem night clubs. Others have begun to speak a little dubiously of the gentleman, their idea being that Max Baer is paying too much attention to the set of his finger wave, or something, and not enough to James J. Braddock, his heavyweight championship opponent exactly one month from last night.

As for the promoter, James J. Johnston, who is not without a certain bias, he is gradually working himself up to a tantrum. Today, he was around saying that Braddock cannot miss. In another week, he'll believe it himself.

The result is that Joe (we was all saluting) Jacobs is going down to Baer's camp at Asbury park tomorrow and have a confidential chat with the young man Joseph being somewhat alarmed by the turn of events. He has learned that Baer has publicly referred to this as a "joke" fight and, while Joseph feels there's nothing like a great, big, boisterous sense of humor, his own is not yet prepared to equal $500,000 worth.

In other words, his interest in Baer is proportionate to his interest in cutting in on the half million dollar gate he hopes to see with a Baer-Schmeling fight in Chicago late this summer.

"I still think Braddock won't come up for the second round," said he this morning. "But, believe me, after I watch Baer tomorrow and have a talk with him, I won't have to think I'll know."

"Twice, I've made the mistake they say he's making now. The first time, my fighter got knocked out by Baer; the second time, he got battered around by Hamas in Philadelphia. So I ought to know something about over-confidence. In fact, I'm an authority."

EVANS IS SEEKING RETURN OF PUNCH

CLEVELAND, May 14—While the Cleveland Indians and the Washington Senators hoped to play the twice-postponed game because of rain in the 1935 game today, Billy Evans, Cleveland's general manager, knitted his brow over the problem of supplying the Tribe with much-needed punch.

The unsatisfactory work of the Indians the last week, when the team was able to dodge the rain and play, will result in several changes in the present lineup, it was believed.

Evans is known to be looking for a catcher and a hard-hitting infielder, which means that there may be some weeding out before the trading deadline is crossed in a month.

Mel Harder was to twirl for the Indians today and Earl Whitehill was scheduled to face the Tribe on the mound for the Nats.

LOU TRIES FOR SPEEDWAY RECORD

Louis Meyer

Only active entry to win the Indianapolis 500-mile Memorial Day race twice, Louis Meyer of Huntington Park, Cal., will try this year for a third victory. No driver has won three times.

Meyer Has Good Chance To Set Racing History

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., May 14—Louis Meyer, only active double winner at Indianapolis, won't even hazard a guess on who might win the 500-mile classic over the Indianapolis Motor Speedway May 30.

"I used to be able to pick them," Louis said, "but the way things are now I'd be out on a limb. No one actually is able to pick a winner out of this year's field—for 95 percent of them are capable of winning. It was 't always like that in days gone by, take it from me." Louis can make history himself if he is lucky enough to push his fast charger over the finish line a winner on Decoration Day. It would make him a triple winner and it is likely to be some years before any one else could turn the same trick.

He has brought his car from Huntington Park, Cal., which he says he worked on most of the winter. It was almost too new when he brought it to Indianapolis the first time last year. Most of his colleagues thought he had handicapped himself by arriving so late at Indianapolis last year that he hardly had time to break in his car.

Louie is undisturbed over the fuel limitation of 42 1-2 gallons this year, he says. The new Meyer car will not use over 40 gallons during the race and this, he said, will leave him a margin of two-and-a-half gallons.

MACK FORECASTS HOT LOOP RACE

CHICAGO, May 14—Connie Mack, the 72 year old boss of the Philadelphia Athletics, today forecast a merry pennant race in the American league that will keep everybody guessing pretty well up to the last of the season.

The old gentleman said he was well pleased with the climb of the three "down under" clubs, Cleveland, the White Sox and the Boston Red Sox, into the thick of the race. "It means tremendous good for the league," the veteran said. "And the finest thing for American league baseball is the upturn of the White Sox, who haven't won a pennant race since 1919."

But the weather is just a pain to the veteran manager and probably the worst spring weather he has ever seen.

Women who pluck their eyebrows endanger their eyes besides, that practice, in the opinion of men, is hideous.—Paul Gifford, prominent Vermont optometrist.

Coach Visits May 25

It would be a good idea for high school athletes to hang around town Saturday, May 25, because Elmer Reger, newly-elected coach, will be in town that day. For how long we do not know, but unless something happens between now and then he will be here to get acquainted with some of the boys.

Not Discouraged

Reger in a communication received today says despite reports of scanty football material he is not discouraged. "The set up looks pretty good to me," he writes, "regardless of the reported scanty material. I had the same thing at Orrville and took it on the chin the first year. The second year we had a good team and this season the football team set a school record."

Trainer Successor

Alfred Tanner, star end on the Wooster college team for three years, has been employed as Reger's successor at Orrville.—The new Orrville coach is a native of Willard, Ohio.

Well-Pitched Games

Although taking a 3-0 lead in the first inning, the Red Birds were chilled at Milwaukee Monday, 10 to 3—Kloza, Webb and the other Brewer powerhouses went into action—There were some mighty well-pitched ball games played Monday in the big show—St. John's of the Reds gave the Braves five hits winning, 3-1; Bill Lee, former Bird, was too tough for the Braves winning 3-2 and giving seven hits; Bill Walker and Carl Hubbell each gave six hits in 10 innings, Durocher's homer winning for the Cards; Schoolboy Rowe was touched four times blanking the Yankees; Wes Ferrell gave the Browns only five bingles dropping them to the cellar, and Cy Blanton, Pirate rookie, gave the Phillies only four hits.

Chillicothe Victorious

H., 8, with Wellston failing to score.

GOLF FACTS

Number 600

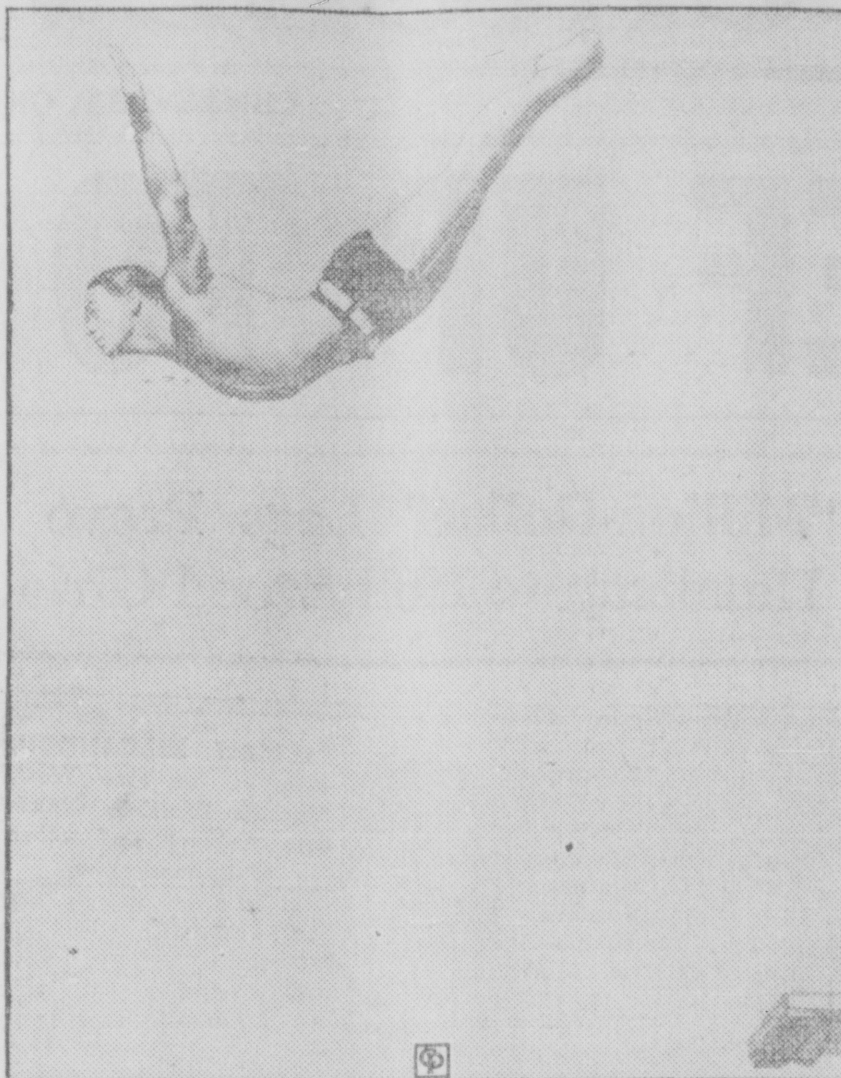

ALEX MORRISON says: I just had a round with Sidney Levinson of Great Neck, Long Island. I would say that he stands about five feet, possibly a shade less.

He has played less than five years. He can smack wood shots well enough to keep up with any of the pros. His drives were never less than 240 yards straight down the middle. It was a pleasure to see him perform, for I've always maintained that size means little if you have the right swing.

Levinson stands quite erect and takes a full windup of body and arms. His wrists are free to bend with the action of club and arms, with the result that he is able to whip the club down with the speed of a pro.

His short game is excellent so that he always gets around in the middle seventies with a good chance of being down close to seventy. Good golf requires skill, not strength.

other sponsors of the measure are vigorously opposed to this. They contend that the Board, to fulfill its mission as a "Supreme Court for Labor Problems," must be independent of political supervision or interference.

This logic prevailed with the Senate Labor Committee. Under the bill reported out the Board would have an independent status.

Chairman Bill Connery, of the House Labor Committee, acted differently. As a friend of Miss Perkins he favored acceding to her demand. Yet, he could not brush aside arbitrarily the pleas and arguments of the authors of the legislation.

So he decided the issue in this statesmanlike manner:

When his committee met to vote on the bill the one-time vaudeville boogie proposed that he call up President Bill Green, of the A. F. of L., and ask him what should be done. This was agreed to. Green was telephoned. He recommended that Miss Perkins be made boss of the Board.

When Representative Vito Marcantonio objected to following Green's advice, pointing out that he, like Connery, was a political pal of Secretary Perkins, Connery placatingly replied:

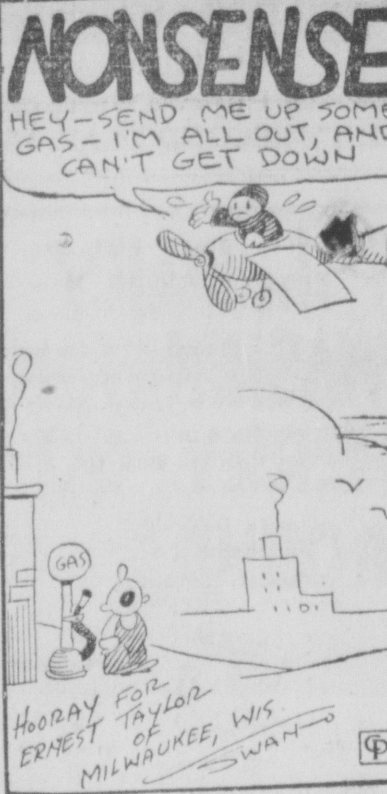

"Oh, let's not quarrel over it. We can come to an agreement on it later in the conference committee."

Birth Control

The dynamite-laden question of birth control is causing a cat-and-dog fight behind the scenes on Capitol Hill.

The question at issue is Jim Farley's new obscenity bill, which would make illegal the sending of birth control literature through the mails, even when directed to physicians and hospitals. This is a much more stringent regulation than exists at present, and has aroused the bitter-end resentment of Margaret Sanger and birth control advocates.

On the other side of the fence, and championing the bill with equal vigor, are various church organizations.

The bill would not bar distribution of the book "Rhythm," Catholic-approved text on the subject, which the Post Office Department already has ruled to be mailable.

Mrs. Sanger is backing an amendment to the Farley bill which would exempt from its provisions contraceptive information sent to physicians, hospitals, and clinics. The amendment has been introduced by Representative Walter M. Pierce, of Oregon, father of six children, but its acceptance is highly doubtful.

Circleville Church Groups Observe Mother's Day With Pleasantly Appointed Dinners

Mothers, Daughters of Presbyterian Church Enjoy Program

A social event of more than usual brilliance was the annual Mother and Daughter banquet of the Westminster Bible class of the Presbyterian church, Monday evening, in the church social room. A large crowd was feasted at the artistically decorated tables which were placed in the shape of M. The stage was banked with baskets of spring flowers and the table centerpieces were purple and gold iris with gold candles.

The speaker's table was centered with a huge bowl filled with American Beauty roses which were presented to the mothers present by Fred Clark.

Mrs. Melissa Colvill offered prayer before the guests were seated. A delicious dinner was served by the hostess committee under the direction of Miss Florence Dunton, who was assisted by Mrs. Charles Smith, Mrs. Aletha Lucas, Mrs. Stanley Lewis, Mrs. L. E. Evans and Mrs. Paul Gearhart.

Waitresses serving the dinner were daughters of the Bible class members.

Mrs. Lewis, president of the class, welcomed the mothers and presented Mrs. Blanche Moteschman, toastmaster for the evening.

The opening number, a song, "Oh Motherhood the Beautiful," was sung by the entire group directed by Mrs. Harry Heffner and played by Miss Abbe Mills Clarke.

Next was a toast to the mothers by the class president. A noteworthy response was given by a mother, Mrs. Clara Dresbach.

The surprise of the evening came when Mrs. Moteschman presented a radio artist, Dominic Bruzasse, known as "Uncle Don" heard each evening at 6:30 o'clock over station WENS in a children's hour. He has an unexcelled repertoire of magical tricks accumulated through his travels in various countries.

Appropriate and impressive were the vocal solos by Mrs.

Another Long Climbs

Rose Long

Huey Long has to share honors with his daughter in Louisiana. Rose Long, who is a sophomore at Louisiana State university, the senator's pet college, was chosen queen of the engineers' ball this year.

125 Attend Program of Von Bora Society Monday Evening

Another delightful Mother's Day banquet is in the history of the Von Bora society of Trinity Lutheran church following Monday night's annual May affair in the parish house, which was enjoyed by approximately 125 members, mothers and guests.

The dining room was beautiful with a profusion of spring flowers. Artistically arranged baskets and bowls of iris and vari-colored tulips were tastefully placed to advantage. An orchid and white color scheme was used in the attractive table appointments. White candles lighted the long tables, which were placed to form an M. Miniature mothers made of orchid crepe paper were clever favors and centerpieces of spring flowers were used. Mrs. Elgin Merriman and Mrs. Mary Bower were responsible for the decorations.

At 6:30 o'clock a three course dinner was served under the chairmanship of Miss Katherine Wefler, who was assisted by Mrs. John Seall, Miss Ethel Stein, Mrs. Luther Walters, Mrs. Fred Boggs, Miss Helen Crist, Miss Magdalene Trump, Misses Martha and Margaret Crist and Mrs. Earl Hoffman.

After the dinner Mrs. Mary Bower, president, acted as toastmaster and opened the program with group singing. She then welcomed the mothers to which Mrs. Harry Groce responded in a pleasing manner.

The first number was a vocal selection, "The Story of the Rosary," sung by a trio comprised of Mrs. Malcolm Parrett, Mrs. William Fitzpatrick and Miss Helen Crist, with Miss Anna Schleyer accompanist.

The feature of the evening was a talk by a guest speaker, Mrs. G. C. Gast, of Columbus, who was well-received by her listeners. Mrs. Gast is president of the Ohio district of the Women's Missionary Federation, of which she gave the history. She told of the Federation's work and what it has accomplished to date.

Miss Schleyer, accomplished pianist, in her inimitable manner entertained with two beautiful numbers. She played Caprice by Brilliance and Chopin's Waltz.

This was followed by a reading, "A Letter from Mother," splendidly given by Miss Wilmine Haecker.

Marion Sensenbrenner with Miss Schleyer at the piano sang two appropriate and beautiful selections, "That Old Irish Mother of Mine" and "Mother."

The annual custom of presenting gifts to the oldest and youngest mother present was then observed. Mrs. Bower presented the gifts in behalf of the society to Mrs. Mary Stein, the oldest, and Mrs. Luther Bower, the youngest. Mrs. Margaret Ebert, next to the oldest mother present, was presented with a bouquet of flowers.

Rev. George Troutman gave an interesting short talk followed by a reading, "A Picture of Mother," by Mr. Sensenbrenner. The program concluded with a picture representation of Mother's Day presented with slides and group singing.

Sunday School Class of Methodist Church Has its Annual Party

Sixty members, mothers and visitors enjoyed the beautifully appointed banquet, Monday evening, in the basement of the Methodist Episcopal church, when Mrs. George Marion's Sunday school class entertained with its annual Mother's Day party.

Pink and white were predominant in the lovely decorations. Tulips were in profusion throughout the dining room and a tulip was given each mother present. The tables were placed to form a triangle in each corner of which was a floor lamp. White candles in crystal holders tied with pink crepe paper bows lighted the tables on which were attractive pink tulip cups and pink and white mints. A beautiful flower box of nasturtiums was used in the center of the triangle formed by the tables. Mrs. Frank Kline Jr. and her committee were responsible for the pretty decorations.

Mrs. Barton Deming assisted by Mrs. Thaddeus Cromley, Mrs. Virgil Cress and Mrs. Dwight Steele served the delectable dinner at 6:30 o'clock.

Following the dinner hour Miss Elizabeth Tolbert served as toastmaster introducing the various numbers on the program.

Miss Virginia Nelson, president of the class, welcomed the mothers after which Mrs. George Marion, class teacher, presented gifts to two members, who are moving to other towns this summer. Miss Mildred Ruffner, a teacher, is going to Delaware and Mrs. P. S. Herberholz will make her home in Cincinnati.

Mrs. Ervin Leist, a talented pianist, gave the first number. She played "The Rosary" and also the piano accompaniment for the next number, which was two selections by Miss Helen Yates, violinist. Miss Yates' solos were "Liebestraum" and "Wonderful Mother of Mine."

A group of vocal solos by Mrs. John Bragg, followed. Mrs. Bragg played her own accordion accompaniment.

The concluding number was an entertaining playlet, "Uncle Hiram's Cold" presented by several members of the Young Ladies' Bible class of the church.

Taking part were Mrs. F. M. McCollister, Mrs. N. E. Reichelderfer, Mrs. Lester Coate, Mrs. Mildred Karshner, Mrs. Carl Bennett, Mrs. P. S. Herberholz and Mrs. Guy Pettit.

TRADING AT HOME

THERE are any number of people living in and around Circleville who do not take seriously to the idea that it is best to trade at home. They take the position that it does not matter where they spend their money if they get their money's worth. They subscribe to the doctrine that the only obligation they owe the home town is to get what they can out of it.

Our idea of trading at home does not include buying goods from merchants who attempt exorbitant profits. It does not necessitate the acceptance of worn, dirty or bedraggled goods from merchants who think it is up to the community to keep them in business. It only means giving the local merchant a chance, and then buy what you desire, if he can reasonably meet other competition.

Every wage earner in Circleville, every business and professional man is dependent upon home institutions for his means of livelihood, whether it be in salary, professional fees, service—public or private—or from any other source. Money earned here should be spent here. The average citizen should be willing to do his part toward increasing the total volume of local business. Out of this sum is taken the prosperity for all of us. The larger it is, the bigger the average share. Every citizen that spends his dollars at home helps that much in making the business of the community bigger. He helps the town to expand, put on new growth and support new enterprises.

The local merchants, on their side, have duties in regard to this trade-at-home idea. They must keep the buyer well informed as to what they have to sell, and must maintain, at all times, the confidence of the buying public.

A good slogan for all of us to adopt is "Try Circleville First."

BORN WHILE GUNS BOOMED

VETERANS of the World War who recall quite vividly the lives they lived in the little villages of France while waiting for the transports to carry them home will read with mixed emotions this dispatch from Paris:

"War babies, 120,000 strong, streamed to the colors today to swell the number under arms in France to 420,000. In cities and villages throughout the land the conscripts—born while the big guns of the World War were roaring—thronged railway stations, leaving for barracks for the start of their 18-month training period. Gay for the most part, the recruits sang and joked as they said 'ou revoir!' Many carried gifts of candy, cake and delicacies."

These are the little babies that were carried about in the arms of their mothers or big sisters, or occasionally by a friendly doughboy back in 1918, in Les Laumes, or Senur, Poullinay or Esquelles, Baar-Sur-Aub or Flagny.

And now these youngsters are soldiers, clad in horizon blue and with hob-nailed boots, laden down with rifle and a pack, one of those two-compartment canteens that hold both wine and water, and with the air of Europe charged with the spirit of war.

The news reports say that they were gay as they marched off to their cantonments, that they sang and joked and carried delicacies, the gifts of fond parents. This is all in accordance with traditions that date back to the days of Hannibal and beyond.

But what of the reverse side of the weaving—the mud and the agony, mangled limbs and blinded eyes, ruined lives, and lives ended before their time? It is not pleasant for men who have seen war to permit their minds to dwell upon the fact that the infants they knew during those relatively happy days after the armistice had been signed and home loomed as a prospect of the near future have now been caught in the entangling meshes of war.

Mae West's husband is the current "forgotten man"—at least to Mae.

When a police dragnet is employed, there's no other alibi quite so good as a job.

One fault in hanging is that it seems an object lesson only to those who get hanged.

"The Old Maid" is the Pulitzer prize-winning play. Who said this was the day of youth?

The army still has 7,027 horses awaiting the great emergency—when the time comes to pull the motorized artillery out of the mud.

Lloyd George says the nations of Europe have kept too much to themselves. As we recall it, though, they mixed quite freely for about four years.

Looking Back In Pickaway County

FIVE YEARS AGO

J. O. Eagleson, superintendent of Circleville schools for 10 years, was reelected for a term of two years by the city board of education. E. I. Gephart was reelected principal and J. M. Guthrie was named director of athletics.

C. J. Hinton's garage in Tarter was burglarized and seven new automobile and truck tires stolen.

Circleville was well represented at the Central Ohio league track meet held at Westerville.

15 YEARS AGO

STORMY LOVE

A YOUNG NAVY MAN'S ROMANCE BELLE BURNS GROMER

CHAPTER 1

ALONG THE Nanking road the calls of ricksha coolies vied with the piping bedlam of eastern motor horns. A procession of students with banners had just passed so that Shanghai's busiest thoroughfare surged in the fall sunlight with waves of traffic and humanity.

In a taxi that was taking every opportunity to make headway against the tide, Lieutenant Valentine Preston, U. S. N.—attached to the gunboat Panay of the Yangtze patrol—leaned forward urging the driver to greater effort. This passenger who gripped a florist's box and a Chinese doll under one muscular, tweed-clad arm, was a personable young man, although just now his square jaw was so anxiously set, arrogant nostrils flared impatiently, and his eyes—thick black lashes intensified by thick black lashes and his heavy tan—were fixed anxiously on his watch.

As the taxi darted in and out through each breach in the traffic, Val prayed that he should reach Junice Edding before her ship unanchored. Inwardly cursing the habitual carelessness that had let him break last night's date with her, he told himself she must not sail without knowing how contrite he was. Not for the world would he have hurt her. And yet, he had shown her a discourtesy that a high-spirited girl like Jan would find hard to overlook.

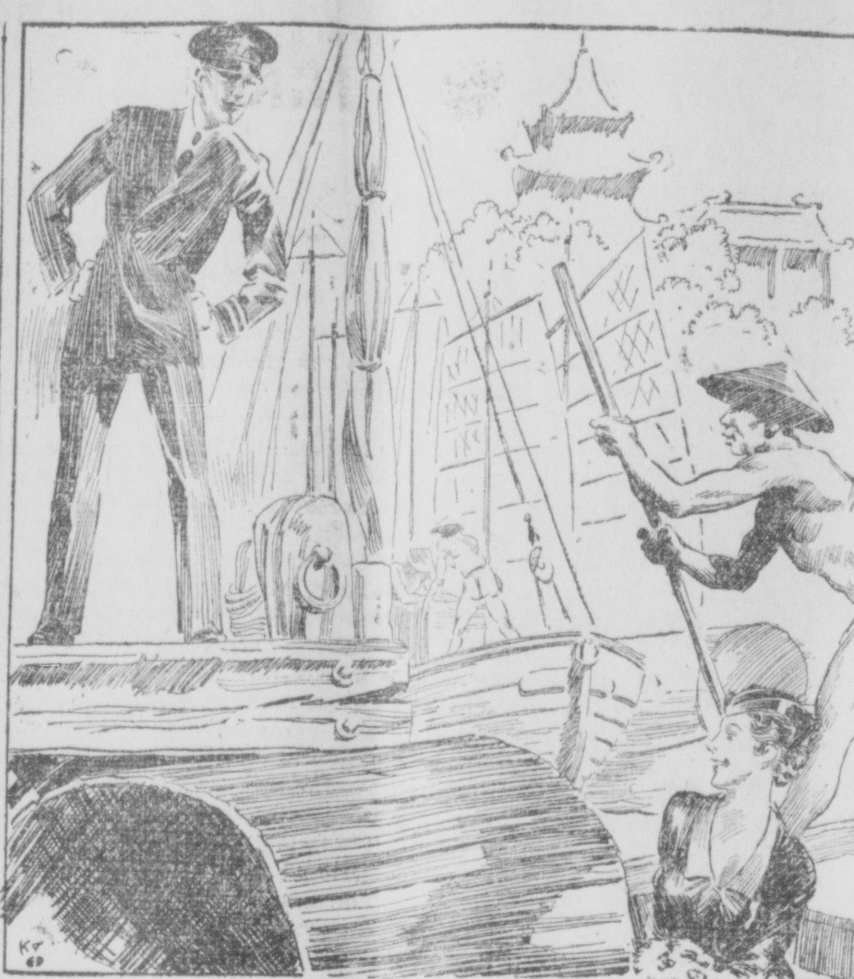

It sickened him to think of it. Why the devil couldn't one of his fellow officers have remembered that two months up-river put a man out of touch with the news? Why, when his ship returned to port yesterday, hadn't someone warned him that Jan was leaving China? Instead, he had nonchalantly let himself forget their long-standing date for his first evening back in Shanghai. And then only a half-hour ago, when he had driven out to Frenchtown to apologize and try to make his peace, he was stunned to hear from a servant that Jan's father had his orders back to duty in the States. Indeed, it appeared the family had already boarded the President Taft, and was sailing—he stared down at his watch—Good Lord, in less than an hour!

Still a bit fogged as to how last night's blunder could have happened he recalled that yesterday when his ship dropped anchor in the Whangpoo, he had intended to phone Jan the moment he got ashore. At five o'clock he had landed at the jetty, started down the Bund to settle himself at the Astor for his three-day leave. On the way, impetuously by a shipmate, he had dropped into the club bar for one drink and a look around.

There they had run across a group of Standard Oil men and news-writers—an entertaining lot who were in possession of the latest news from the States and Europe and the Japanese front—and as the drinks circulated laughter and conversation had blended into a gay camaraderie. Presently someone had urged him to the piano for one tune. After that, more drinks. A gang gathered around the piano to rehearse the "Riff Song" and "Down With Burgundy" until they could put them over like a cold million. They had started on "Good King Wenceslaus" when he was electrified by the mid-night chiming of the bar clock. And it was too late to call Jan or do anything else but stick with the crowd and go on forgetting—

He was only vaguely aware of what happened later. He supposed he had got to bed some time this morning. On awakening a while ago he had pulled himself together and called in at once to the Edding home to apologize. And now he had discovered Jan was leaving China; his head throbbed like a jungle drum; and he wanted a drink like nobody's business.

The motor approached the harbor front and Val leaned his lithe length forward to peer through the window. There he could glimpse the black hull of the President Taft anchored far out in the swirling brown waters of the river where even now she seemed to strain at her chains. His already taut muscles tightened as the Nanking road swung around the turbid authority of a huge Sikh traffic policeman to debouch suddenly into the Bund. The taxi skidded to a stop. The young man leaped out to toss a bill and an answering grin to the driver, then turning, ran with swift, easy strides along the street and across the gangway to the customs house jetty.

She had snatched the last sampan.

There his course was abruptly halted by an expanse of dirty water widening between himself and the receding stern of the last tender carrying visitors to the President Taft. Nonplused, he stood for a defeated instant. Then as his finely built body swung about, his eyes leaped to where a lone sampan floated a fare.

He strode toward it. But even as he did so he was diverted by the appearance of a girl—something very special with slim, twinkling ankles, tiny feet, and carrying a leopard-skin coat—who, with her imperious little hand held up to the cooie, tripped from the opposite side of the jetty. Val had signaled the man first, but as the girl approached he instinctively gave way for the instant it took her to step into the craft and settle herself. Hell's bells! The last sampan and this young upstart had snatched it! As the small boat slid away he glared down into the lustrous dark eyes that peered back at him over a graceful shoulder; but when she flung him the faintest ghost of a smile, he found himself melting into an answering grin.

Nevertheless the grin soon faded, his debonair manner grew momentarily more subdued as his gaze vainly searched the neighboring floats for any other available water-taxi. Usually there were a dozen empty sampans to be whistled up; but to-day the little river craft all appeared engaged in carrying spectators to the rowing races on Footing street. Beneath his low-pulled hat brim his blue eyes burned with chagrin. He crammed florist's box and Chinese doll under his elbow, fumbled with impatient fingers for a cigaret, lighted it, took a deep drag and exhaled smoke and a sotto voce flow of

Heard & Seen

BY KAY JAY

Residents of Central Ohio are being warned of a new racket that is being worked by experts in that particular line in various sections. Over in Hocking-co, two men representing themselves to be "eye specialists on a government survey to correct imperfect vision," made a call on a prospective victim. One man approached the victim, an aged lady, and wanted to examine her eyes. Of course he found a serious malady, and called in his partner, a specialist, to confirm his diagnosis. They predicted total blindness unless something was done immediately and offered to operate for $250, or whatever amount of cash they could get.

In this particular instance the matter was taken under advisement by the woman and her husband, and later the incident was reported to authorities. Some few years ago the same racket was worked through this section of Ohio and quite a number of people were duped into parting with hard-earned cash for which they received no benefit whatever.

The government is not sending men throughout the country to test the eyes of the citizens, but these racketeers find any number of people ready and willing to believe any story they tell, and they seem to be just as ready and willing to pay exorbitant fees to strangers. Barnum was right—except that his estimate of a "sucker" being born every minute was too low.

Why is it that we often question the capability of business or professional men that we know personally and see almost every day, and turn right around and hand out to some stranger about three times the legitimate fee for such service—and then not get the service?

If some stranger comes to your home and wants to examine your eyes, don't bother to call the sheriff—just call the dogs and grab the old shotgun. Those fellows are "city slickers" and almost before you know it, if you stop to listen to them, they'll walk away with half the house and lot in their vest pocket.

You will never have but one pair of eyes. If they need attention there are plenty of reliable men with established reputations who will give you every consideration for a reasonable fee.

WHERE'S OLD OPPORTUNITY?

"Look here, Bogus," asked the colonel, "do you happen to know where Ink Johnson is just now?" "Yassah! Sho, does, sah!" replied Bogus. He's asleep six minutes over dar in de shade of de lumberryard lookin' for a job, sah!"—Exchange.

Poems That Live

A MAN'S DOG

A man may lose his house and lot, His friends may pass him by, He may not have a thin dime left To rent a slab of pie; But if he owns the homeliest And saddest dog in town, He has one pall whose honest love Will never turn him down.

A man may kick his mangy pup And cuss him day and night, Still will the faithful cur be true And greet him with delight; Lifelong he sits upon the porch And wags his happy tail, To greet his lord when he shall come From Congress or from jail.

Tonight, one of the strangest, weirdest stage performances ever seen in Circleville will be presented at the Cliftona Theatre, by Dr. A. Alan Rague and company. The London Ghost Show and Spook Party will bring to Circleville a new and totally different form of entertainment. Starting at 11:15 p. m. It will be your chance to see ghosts walking, see the levitation of heavy objects, floating spirit faces, electric light bulbs, to hear spirit voices and trumpet messages. Members of the audience will be asked upon the stage to participate. You will be thrilled by the remarkable materializations and psychic effects.

Simple Rules Aid Mother In Caring for New Baby

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

THE NEW MOTHER quite naturally regards her suddenly acquired responsibilities with considerable dismay. What is she going to do with this little living creature in order to keep it in the pink of condition? How is it to be fed, and how often? What is the technique of bathing it? What kind of clothes, and how many, should it wear? How long should it sleep? How much air should it have?

Well, all these things are important, and there is a right and a wrong way of doing all of them, although for the mother's comfort it may be said that Nature is able to do pretty well with the slightest amount of encouragement, provided the baby is healthy from the beginning. Natural food, enough water, some sunshine and air, plenty of sleep, a cleansing bath, even if not too regular, and enough clothes to keep it warm, and it will thrive surprisingly.

Danger of Infection
The greatest danger to which the baby is exposed is one that is not frequently thought of—that is, the infectious diseases. And there is one thing that the new family must plan to do, which is to set a time for vaccinating the baby against smallpox and diphtheria.

The summary of all rules for the purpose of keeping the baby healthy, presents an outstanding list of screen favorites including Charles Starrett, Robert Warwick, Edward Van Sloan, Marion Shilling, Doris Lloyd, Helen Jerome Eddy, James Bush, Julian Madison, Broderick O'Farrell, and Jane Keckley among others. This new film is a screen version of Clifford Orr's brilliant detective novel and "College Humor" serial, "The Dartmouth Murders," a story read and enjoyed by hundreds of thousands. Charles Belden, who is well known for his successful "The Mystery of the Wax Museum," "Dr. X," and "The Ghost Walks" is credited with this picture's adaptation and screen play.

as laid down by an eminent children's specialist, is as follows:

"1. Skilled medical and nursing care of the mother before, during, and after the birth of the baby, and especial attention to its physical examination, nutrition and daily hygiene.

"2. Establishment of breast feeding, and its continuation for at least six or seven months at regular nursing periods of three or four hours.

Supplementary Feedings
"3. Supplementary feeding with simple mixtures of cow's milk, pasteurized or boiled, when prescribed by a physician after a thorough effort to carry on breast feeding.

"4. Fresh air day and night.

"5. Regulation of body temperature by suitable clothing and proper feeding apparatus.

"6. Scrupulous daily attention to cleanliness of the baby.

"7. Regular hours of sleep.

"8. Formation of good habits from the very first."

To many of these there will be some exceptions. Especially in the way of feeding, because the mother cannot always nurse the baby. Others need amplification—what, for instance, is "suitable" clothing? It will be the purpose of the articles this week to enlarge upon this simple summary, and explain the technique of the different procedures.

THOSE CHAIN LETTERS

(Columbus Dispatch)

You are guilty of a criminal offense if you participate in the "dime chain letter" scheme, according to a ruling of the postal department. The plan comes under the head of a violation of the postal code. Swamped with questions as to legality of the scheme, authorities have come to the rescue of the burdened post offices with the decree that it is illegal and those involved are liable to arrest and punishment. This is expected to halt the practice that has caused consternation to those charged with handling the mails.

There is nothing new about the scheme, except that it is adapted to a gambling racket. Chain letters have been known before, and probably will be known again. But if Uncle Sam can help it they will not longer be used in this manner and as a measure to stop the practice arrests are being made and will be continued as long as necessary.

DAVEY AND HOPKINS SHOWDOWN IS SEEN

COLUMBUS, May 14—Democrats viewed it apprehensively but Ohio Republicans today looked forward with unconcealed glee to the impending showdown between Gov. Martin L. Davey and Federal Relief Administrator Harry L. Hopkins.

Hopkins is accepting Davey's dare to "come to Ohio and show that you are a man, or turn and run like a coward and confess your contemptible character."

Davey wired him the challenge on March 18, when he filed criminal libel proceedings against Hopkins in Newark, O., municipal court, basing the suit on the latter's charge of a "political shakedown" of firms dealing in relief supplies.

Termed Assassin

"Base and foul character assassin" was the way Davey characterized Hopkins in a message delivered in person that same night to the legislature on the subject of relief. Hopkins had just taken over complete control of relief in Ohio.

But since these harsh words escaped Davey's lips Hopkins has risen to new eminence in the federal recovery picture, being named by President Roosevelt as one of the "big three" in the spending of the new $4,880,000,000 work relief appropriations.

And Ohio along with the other states doesn't know yet how large a slice of the huge appropriation it is to get nor who will have charge of spending it in this state.

Political observers agreed the governor is "on the spot" now that Hopkins has consented to go to Cleveland on May 24, to address the Citizens' League. If Hopkins is embarrassed by being served with warrant for his arrest, it was pointed out that he may find it difficult to overcome his ire at the state administration when the big federal relief pudding is cut.

Yet the governor cannot gracefully side-step the issue and "forget" to have the warrant for Hopkins' arrest served because of the bitterness with which he repeatedly held the federal relief administrator up to public scorn and related what would happen to him if he ever had the temerity to come to Ohio.

Gov. Martin L. Davey

Davey is Silent

Now Hopkins is coming and the governor doesn't know just what to do. Until he gives the matter grave consideration he would not say publicly what course he will follow.

His chief counsel, Prosecutor Kenneth Kreider, said at Newark the warrant would be served on Hopkins as soon as he entered the state. The customary procedure would be for him to then furnish bond for a later appearance in an Ohio court, but since criminal libel is not an extraditable offense Hopkins could not be compelled to return for trial unless he chose.

PLAY OF SENIOR CLASS TO START THURSDAY AT 8

"The Youngest," Senior class play, to be presented Thursday and Friday at the high school auditorium, is different from the usual class drama in that it was written for professional players and has cost a considerable sum to produce.

The royalty on this drama, which was presented on Broadway in 1925, has just recently been lowered to a reasonable sum to make its production by high school players possible. However, it is still higher than that on any play ever presented here.

Another unique feature of this play written by Philip Barry is that the cast is confined to nine characters whose importance in the drama are nearly equivalent.

The plot is built upon the never-ending problem of the youngest of each family who is oppressed and heckled by his brothers and sisters. The climax occurs when he rebels with the aid of the girl he loves.

Roy Bowen is directing a splendid cast including Otis Mader, Elsie Brehmer, Horace Gilmore, Lydia Given, Virginia Caskey, George Speakman, Carl Boggs, Dorothy Fohl, and Virginia Cady.

"The Youngest" has become a very popular drama in colleges and city high schools this spring. Among the places it is being presented is Ohio Wesleyan.

OHIO CITIES SEEK AID OF RELIEF CHIEF

Want Stillman to Provide Money From Huge Fund to Maintain Service

COLUMBUS, May 14—Ohio cities, financially crippled by shortage of operating revenue, pleaded with federal relief authorities today to provide federal aid to maintain municipal service departments under the $4,880,000 work relief program.

Turned down in their appeal for aid under the present relief program, officials of the Ohio League of Municipalities appealed to C. C. Stillman, federal relief administrator for Ohio, for help during the remainder of 1935.

No Provision
Stillman, who advised Mayor Henry Worley, Columbus, president of the Municipalities' League, that there is no provision for allocating federal funds to cities for ordinary municipal duties, indicated today that federal authorities are considering a special provision in the new work relief program to provide financial relief to municipalities.

Worley and mayors of several other Ohio cities have appealed through Stillman to FERA administrators at Washington for permission to use relief workers on county relief rolls to augment crews of street cleaners, park workers and rubbish collectors.

They also asked for emergency police officers and emergency firemen.

Worley pointed out that scores of cities have been forced to reduce personnel of these service and safety departments to a bare minimum to stay within municipal budgets for the current year.

No Authority
Stillman today explained he has received no authority to spend federal funds under the present program for re-inforcing municipal services, explaining there will be no modification of present regulations.

Senator Tydings, himself a veteran, suggested that Long discuss his own war record.

He indicated, however, that federal authorities may look with favor on the plea of municipalities when the regulations for spending the $4,880,000 work relief funds are set up.

SENATE READY TO BEAT HUEY LONG'S INQUIRY

N'Orleans Senator Says People Will Some Day Force Farley Probe

WASHINGTON, May 14—Although Senator Huey P. Long (D) of Louisiana charged Postmaster General James A. Farley with helping the James Stewart Contracting firm, of New York City, swindle the government out of $383,000 on its new federal courthouse there, the senate today appeared ready to refuse to investigate the cabinet officer.

Administration leaders opposed the investigation, asked by Long, on the ground it was inspired by hatred of President Roosevelt and by personal malice against Farley. They ignored the pleas of liberal Democrats for an inquiry to clear Farley's name and prove Long's charges false.

Long predicted the people would force the investigation later even if the senate refused one now.

"I guess Jim Farley and that $4,880,000 work fund will be strong enough to defeat this resolution," said Long. "The administration doesn't want this investigation because they all know these charges are true. But the American people will not let them whitewash Jim Farley forever. They can kill this investigation but one of these days the people will make them hold an investigation. The American people won't stand for a whitewash when they become convinced the government was swindled."

VOLUNTEER LABOR SOUGHT FOR CANAL DAM JOB

RELIEF TIE-UP IMPEDES WORK

Ideal Recreation, Fishing Ground to be Provided By Sportsmen

In spite of the fact that work on all projects in Pickaway-co employing relief labor has been suspended, due to a controversy between the county commissioners and C. C. Stillman, Ohio's federal relief administrator, work on the canal dam three miles south of the city is being carried on with volunteer labor.

This announcement was made Tuesday by H. E. Betz, president of the Pickaway-co Farmers' and Sportsmen's association, following a conference of officers and members of the organization, at which time plans were made to complete the project as soon as possible.

The project was sponsored by the sportsmen's organization - to provide a recreation ground and a large body of water to be stocked with fish. Quite a bit of labor and material for the construction of the dam were donated, and funds were provided by the organization for preliminary work.

To Make Ideal Place Relief labor has been employed to build the dam, with the cooperation of federal and state departments. When completed, water above the dam will be raised approximately eight feet and will back up in the canal bed more than two miles, making an ideal place for the propagation of fish.

"We are carrying on the best we can under the circumstances," stated Mr. Betz. "When relief labor was discontinued, the dam was about 80 per cent completed, and there is much work yet to be done. We are calling for volunteers to devote as much of their time as possible to completing the job and would like to get it completed as soon as possible as we have a large shipment of fish coming with which to partially stock the lake.

The relief labor was discontinued as no funds were available to Pickaway-co when the county commissioners failed to agree with the state relief administrator on methods of operating the general relief and employment program in this county."

Mr. Betz and many others active in the organization are spending quite a bit of time on the construction job and would appreciate any help given them.

American federation of labor organizer in active charge of the Toledo walkout, and Edward F. McGrady, assistant secretary of labor, was accepted, Knudson issued a formal statement which said:

"The acceptance of our proposal means that the Chevrolet division of General Motors will make arrangements to open the Toledo plant at once."

Terms of the agreement, announced after the vote, provided for a four-cent-an-hour wage increase, raising the minimum to 54 cents; additional adjustments; time and one-half for overtime in excess of 48 hours a week and for Sunday and holiday work; and safeguards against lowering of wages when men are shifted from production work during slack seasons, so that no reduction shall be larger than 10 per cent.

Others Forestalled

As a result of the vote, it was understood that the threatened strike of 600 union workers at the Flint, Mich., Buick Co. plant, scheduled for today, had been forestalled, and that other Chevrolet plants closed by the Toledo walkout, including the largest General Motors unit, the Fisher Body Co. plant at Cleveland which employ between 8,000 and 9,000 persons, would reopen within a few days.

The Toledo strike, which affected more than 30,000 workers, was declared April 23.

Their leader was "Cliff" H. Day, a Plainview, Texas, farmer. In keynote speeches, they declared they had come to Washington to thank the administration for the AAA program and to let the nation know they wanted that program to continue.

Once inside Constitution hall, they whooped it up for the administration's farm program by raising cheers from the different state delegations as they waited for the speakers. When the state delegations were not cheering, yells would rent the air from individuals. The meeting sounded like a cross between a rodeo and a prizefight.

be overlooked and she never may be given an opportunity to "emote."

"But some day," Miss Kilgannon insisted, "I will get a chance to act. It will be only a small part—maybe a half dozen lines, but I will be prepared. And that will be the end of stand-in and leg closeups."

Two other beautiful stand-ins in Hollywood are Ann Doran, Amarillo, Tex., blonde, and Joyce Williams, Fresno, Cal., brunette.

Miss Doran stands in for Virginia Bruce, the star, while the photographers arrange lights and focus cameras, while Miss Williams is stand-in for Alice Brady, the star of screen and stage.

"We would rather be stand-ins than extra girls' any day," explained Miss Doran. "Some day we're going to get a chance in the movies for big work. Many members of our profession are college graduates and dramatic students, and they all hope that sometime, sooner or later, they'll get a chance to act, instead of merely to stand in."

Although unsung and unheralded the off-stage heroines have to spend an average of $50 a month for marceis, to keep their clothes in perfect condition, manicures and other feminine necessities.

"For our own future," said Miss Williams, "we must have wardrobes that include everything from house dresses to evening gowns. Also shoes and hats in keeping with the clothes. If a girl is ambitious to get ahead, it is necessary for her to be attractively dressed, for one never can tell when opportunities to do some real acting will come.

"And secondly, one's hair and hands must not be neglected, and this means a regular weekly visit to the hairdresser and to the manicure parlor."

BARBARA IS WED

RENO, Nev., May 14—Barbara Hutton and Count Kurt Haugwitz-Reventlow were married here this afternoon.

Irwin to Ask Stillman

tion Monday afternoon to answer the letter Stillman sent here instructing them to request aid if they wanted it.

Remain Divided

They remained divided on the question, Burr Rader and Ralph May standing against an out-of-the-county director and against cash relief while Edward Wright agreed that if necessary to get relief he is in favor of abiding by Stillman's wishes.

There was a growing feeling today that the county should do something to retain federal help which this month amounts to about $14,000 and will reach an amount about equal to that as long as relief is necessary. Many persons object to the ouster of Irwin and installation of the cash relief system but they object even louder to withdrawal of all federal relief.

The commissioners under their own plan would handle all the county relief themselves but just how this is to be done is not known. A perusal of balance sheets in the auditor's office today disclosed that the poor relief fund is now overdrawn by $15,579.02. The county has a fund of $12,074.64 tagged "emergency fund" but it cannot be touched until the legislature takes some kind of action. This money derived from sale of Section 3 bonds and other sources could be handled only with approval of the state relief commission. Since there is no state relief commission any longer the money, although it belongs to the county legally, cannot be used for relief until permission is voted.

Result Awaited

The result of the visit of the "hunger marchers" to the offices of Stillman and the governor is being awaited here with much interest.

Opera Contest Over Ducks Is Sample of New Deal Confusion

WASHINGTON — It is the conclusion of every Washington observer—whether he is for or against Franklin Roosevelt—that no Administration in years has suffered so much internal confusion as the New Deal.

This has two causes:

1. Roosevelt has undertaken a tremendous program in a relatively short time, and the throwing together of emergency bureaus and emergency programs necessarily has resulted in considerable confusion.
2. The man who is the axis of this program, its guiding genius, the dynamo behind it, time after time has added to the confusion by reversing himself or giving conflicting ideas to his Cabinet officers.

This second point was strikingly driven home the other day to a close friend of the President's who was sitting in on some of his private conferences.

Ducks vs. Cattle

One of these conferences was with Secretary Harold Ickes, who had worked out a plan for taking part of the national domain now lying idle—and turning it over to grazing land under the new Grazing Act.

"Excellent idea," said the President. An executive decree to execute it was ordered.

A day later in came J. N. (Ding) Darling, famous cartoonist, who described his drawing as to protect wild game under the New Deal as chief of the Bureau of Biological Survey. Mr. Darling brought to the President an idea directly the opposite of Mr. Ickes'.

He argued that the use of the national domain as grazing land would destroy the feeding grounds of his ducks. He had particularly at heart the future of trumpeter swans, a species rapidly becoming extinct in the United States. Darling demanded that the national domain be kept intact, not invaded by sheep and cattle.

"Absolutely right," said the President.

Both Ickes and Darling left the President with the impression that he was in complete agreement with them. The result is that the question of ducks and grazing land has been tangled up ever since.

Master Mind

Several Congressmen and journalists visiting the United States Naval Academy at Annapolis recently have been impressed by the mentality of Rear Admiral David Sellers, its commandant and directing genius.

Admiral Sellers' chief passion, as far as Annapolis is concerned, seems to be brighter buttons and more movies extolling the virtues of being a midshipman.

Scholarship, apparently, is a subject with which the Admiral is not greatly troubled.

He has already promoted several motion pictures depicting the romance of a midshipman's life; and the Hollywood executives who smashed up in the plane that killed Senator Cutting were enroute to do another.

"Tell me," inquires the Admiral of visiting journalists, "how can I get another big picture concern interested in the Academy?"

Master's Voice

Camera-shy Secretary Frances Perkins, ever on the alert to enlarge her bureaucratic powers, is insistent that the proposed new National Labor Relations Board, which would be created by the Wagner Labor Disputes Bill, be placed under the jurisdiction of her department.

LOWER HOUSE TO BALLOT ON NEW FUEL TAX

Taxation Committee Bows to Pressure, Votes Measure to Floor

VOTE IS WEDNESDAY

Bittering Triumphs in Committee Fight

COLUMBUS, May 14—Responding toward pressure exerted by Speaker J. Freer Bittering (D) of Ashland, the house taxation committee today reported out and recommended passage of the Uible bill to increase the liquid fuel tax one cent per gallon for the remainder of the year.

Proceeds from the proposed increase, estimated at $7,000,000, would be used for the payment of old age pensions during the last six months of this year.

Received Just Enough

The liquid fuel tax bill, sponsored by Democratic floor leader Frank Uible of Cleveland, had twice previously been turned down by the taxation committee. It received barely enough votes this time to be recommended for passage. The vote was 13 to 7.

Speaker Bittering said the Uible bill will be placed on the house calendar for a vote tomorrow.

Several members who voted to report the bill out served notice that they would vote against it on the floor and that their favorable vote in committee was merely for the purpose of permitting the full membership to make a decision on the measure.

Bittering Victory

It was an indisputable personal triumph for Speaker Bittering, but administration critics including Rep. Christy charged that the "steam roller" had been used freely in lining up committee votes.

Relief for Pickaway-co teachers amounting to $25,824 would be immediately provided if the state senate passes the Wright bill, recommended today by the senate finance committee.

The bill backed by Rep. Harry Wright (D) of Logan, would provide for payment of unpaid teachers. It has already passed the house by a 95-3 ballot and is expected to come to a vote in the upper house Wednesday.

An Emergency Bill

It would enable school boards to borrow against anticipated receipts from the sales tax during the last half of 1935. It is an emergency measure and would be effective as soon as signed by the governor.

ACTRESS LOSER IN SUIT FOR $500,000

LONDON, May 14—Pretty Angela Joyce, the one-time "Goddess in the Clouds" who came down to earth to sue Lord Revelstoke for breach of promise, lost her $500,000 suit against him in King's bench court today.

Only a few minutes of deliberation were needed for a jury of nine men and three women to decide in favor of the 28-year-old British peer and they so informed the court, adding that it would be up to Angela to pay the costs of the proceedings.

Justice Swift, who a short time earlier had blasted her case by ruling that a man doesn't obligate himself to matrimony merely by calling a girl "the sweetest I have ever met," returned a judgment in accordance with the jury's verdict.

"Million-Dollar" Legs Prove Handicap to Hollywood Girls

LILLIAN KILGANNON, stand-in for Mae West, Marlene Dietrich, Claudette Colbert and other Hollywood stars.

ANN DORAN, stand-in for Virginia Bruce.

JOYCE WILLIAMS, stand-in for Alice Brady.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal.—You would think, offhand, that a shapely young brunet with "million dollar legs" would have smooth sailing in Hollywood.

But Lillian Kilgannon, the beauty who has 'em, finds that they (the legs) are a handicap to a career in the movies.

For the past two years she has been a "stand-in" for Mae West, Marlene Dietrich, Claudette Colbert and other celebrated Hollywood stars. She has stood under the blazing hot white lights while the cameraman has lighted up to "shoot" the scene. Then she has stepped out, to permit the player to perform for the camera.

Never Acts

"Sure, I'd like to be a star," said Miss Kilgannon, the daughter of a studio policeman. "Who wouldn't? And no one has a better chance to learn than a 'stand-in.' I'm here on the set at all times. I've never done any acting—but I'm learning, merely by observing. I watch the star and listen to the director."

"The stars are all good to me. Miss West insisted that I stand in for her on her latest picture. She wouldn't have anyone else. And everyone is so generous with presents. I'm saving up for a trip to Ireland. I've never been there—and there isn't a better place for a Kilgannon."

A Paradox

And many Hollywoodites declare that she will continue to be in such demand for "she's" of her legs that her talents as an actress may be called.

WAGE BOOST MADE

Trouble at Other Plants to End, too

TOLEDO, May 14—Finus was written today to the Toledo Chevrolet motor strike—the walkout three weeks ago today that spread in a few days to 33,000 men and threatened to engulf the entire automobile industry.

All 2,340 men who were employed at the plant when the strike started were called today to report for work. In a statement issued shortly before noon, Alfred G. Culliver, new manager of the plant, instructed all workers to report tomorrow, the day shift at 6 a. m. and the night shift at 3:30 p. m.

TOLEDO, May 14—Workers were sent into the strike-closed Toledo Chevrolet Motors corp. plant today to fire the huge furnaces in preparation for resumption of production, possibly tomorrow.

The move marked the end of one of the major automobile industry disputes that resulted in more than 30,000 General Motors corp. employees being thrown into unemployment for the last three weeks.

Striking members of the auto workers' federal union, here voted late last night, 732 to 385, to return to their jobs.

Judge to Allow Jurors To Debate Rest of Week

SAN JOSE, Cal., May 14—Beginning the Lamson jury may eventually reach a verdict, Superior Judge R. R. Syer indicated today that he may order the seven men and five women to deliberate for the remainder of the week.

The jury, deadlocked in its effort to determine whether David A. Lamson killed his wife, Aliene, in the strange "death in the bathroom" case of Stanford university, started its fifth day of arguments this morning.

Twice the jurors have reported to Judge Syer they were "hopelessly deadlocked." And twice Syer has ordered them to deliberate further.

Last, and only, official word of the jury's balloting came from its forewoman, Miss Mary Richter, when she said the jurors stood "nine to three and had remained that way since last Saturday at noon."

Last night, according to a report from the juryroom, one juror switched a vote bringing the tally to a 10 to 2 standing and, of course, nearer a possible verdict.

But just which way the jurors stood for conviction or for acquittal remained vague, but a well-authenticated rumor said the ten jurors stood for acquittal.

Irwin to Ask Stillman To Choose Him Director; Sentiment Growing Here

The Pickaway-co relief "mud-die" remained at a standstill today with a group of nearly 200 men, women and children "hunger marchers" expecting to visit the office of C. C. Stillman, federal relief administrator, to urge him to "do something about conditions in Pickaway-co."

The marchers reached Columbus this morning after spending the night in a warehouse at the Hartman farm. While they escaped the heavy rain of Monday night many were soaked to the skin by the down-pour early Tuesday.

A number of children of relief families were taken out of school by their parents who took them along on the march to the state capital. Both Stillman and Governor Martin Davey were quoted in Columbus newspapers as saying they would grant interviews to any representatives the marchers might select.

Irwin Has Petition

Another move was under way here with Howard Irwin, choice of the commissioners to retain his relief director's job, started to circulate a petition to be handed to Mr. Stillman urging that Irwin be appointed director of relief under a federal administration. The commissioners last week objected to Irwin's being ousted by Stillman who sent W. L. Utley, Cleveland, here to succeed the local man.

It is doubtful that no matter how strong the petition is that Mr. Irwin presents to Stillman whether the administrator will retain him as relief director since he has declared that "federal money must be supervised by a federal appointee." It is possible, however, that Stillman may add Irwin to his office then send him to the local job. In a large majority of counties in the state relief directors are foreign to the county.

The commissioners took no action.

The farmers came from the cotton and tobacco belts of the south and the wheat and corn belts of the west.

They came by train, by motor, and some by foot. Their leaders claimed they paid their own expenses.

PLANS TO ASK 'MARCHERS' TO GO BACK HOME

County Must Consent to Supervision, He Declares Today

Pickaway-co officials must consent to federal relief supervision if federal funds are to be spent there. C. C. Stillman, federal administrator for Ohio, announced today as he awaited a visit from relief clients of Pickaway-co.

Stillman declared he will promise the visiting relief delegation the same share of relief funds they have received if county officials consent to Winfred Utley as county relief administrator. Utley was sent here last week as county director to succeed Howard Irwin, but county commissioners refused to permit him to take over the office.

INSISTS ON UTLEY

Work May Go on Anyway, He Says

Pickaway-co officials must consent to federal relief supervision if federal funds are to be spent there. C. C. Stillman, federal administrator for Ohio, announced today as he awaited a visit from relief clients of Pickaway-co.

Stillman declared he will promise the visiting relief delegation the same share of relief funds they have received if county officials consent to Winfred Utley as county relief administrator. Utley was sent here last week as county director to succeed Howard Irwin, but county commissioners refused to permit him to take over the office.

Advise to Rogers

Stillman said he would advise the relief clients to return to Circleville and await the decision of county commissioners on the county relief administration. If county commissioners wish to take over direct relief administration, the state will continue its share of the work relief program.

Pickaway-co this month received $10,474 for direct relief and $3,000 for work relief projects from the state administration.

No federal funds will be allocated for direct relief next month if the county elects to take over its own relief duties. No the work relief appropriations will continue as long as suitable projects are proposed in this area, Stillman stated.

Utley will come to Circleville to administer the work relief program and the commissioners may retain Irwin as direct relief director if they wish, he added.

Stillman today said he will not push the commissioners for a decision on their relief problem.

"We will wait until they decide what share of the relief burden they wish to take over before deciding definitely on a program for Pickaway-co," he said.

He explained the future relief policy for Pickaway-co depends entirely on county officials.

They may assume charge of their own direct relief, select their own officials and spend their own funds.

If they wish to continue the work relief projects, the state administration will continue to allocate funds for employing relief labor on these projects, provided material is furnished by the applicants and the projects are "worth while," he said.

400 LOSE LIVES IN MINE DISASTER

SHANGHAI, May 14—Four hundred men today lost their lives in one of the most appalling mine disasters in history.

The miners, trapped far underground in the Tzechwan coal mine in Shantung province, were drowned when digging operations tapped a deeply-submerged spring.

The water welled through the shafts in a swift torrent, flooding the whole mine in only 40 minutes.

Electric motors running the pumps and elevators were short-circuited, hampering rescue efforts. By the time emergency apparatus was working, officials found it too late to save anyone and rescue attempts were abandoned.

One Japanese superintendent was drowned, all the others being coolies.

.69 OF INCH OF RAIN RECORDED

Another heavy rain early Tuesday again increased the total for May. Dr. H. R. Clark reported .69 of an inch in the early morning downpour.

The river remains at the stage.

CHAMP JOKES, ROUSES IRE OF 'GARDEN BOSS'

Baer Reported to Have Referred to Braddock Bout as "Joke"

By DAVIS J. WALSH

NEW YORK, May 14—One writer has had him reeling through the Harlem night clubs. Others have begun to speak a little dubiously of the gentleman, their idea being that Max Baer, who is paying too much attention to the set of his finger wave, or something, and not enough to James J. Braddock, his heavyweight championship opponent, exactly one month from last night.

As for the promoter, James J. Johnston, who is not without a certain bias, he is gradually working himself up to a tantrum. Today, he was around saying that Braddock cannot miss. In another week, he'll believe it himself.

The result is that Joe (we was all saluting) Jacobs is going down to Baer's camp at Asbury park tomorrow and have a confidential chat with the young man Joseph being somewhat alarmed by the turn of events. He has learned that Baer has publicly referred to this as a "joke" fight and, while Joseph feels there's nothing like a great, big, boisterous sense of humor, his own is not yet prepared to equal $500,000 worth.

In other words, his interest in Eyer is proportionate to his interest in cutting in on the half million dollar gate he hopes to see with a Baer-Schmeling fight in Chicago late this summer.

"I still think Braddock won't come up for the second round," said he this morning. "But, believe me, after I watch Baer tomorrow and have a talk with him, I won't have to think. I'll know."

"Twice, I've made the mistake they say I'm making now. The first time, my fighter got knocked out by Baer; the second time, he got battered around by Hamas in Philadelphia. So I ought to know something about over-confidence. In fact, I'm an authority."

EVANS IS SEEKING RETURN OF PUNCH

CLEVELAND, May 14—While the Cleveland Indians and the Washington Senators hoped to play the twice-postponed game today, Billy Evans, Cleveland's general manager, knitted his brow over the problem of supplying the Tribe with much-needed punch.

The unsatisfactory work of the Indians the last week, when the team was able to dodge the rain and play, will result in several changes in the present lineup, it was believed.

Evans is known to be looking for a catcher and a hard-hitting infielder, which means that there may be some weeding out before the trading deadline is crossed in a month.

Mel Harder was to twirl for the Indians today and Earl Whitehill was scheduled to face the Tribe on the mound for the Nats.

LOU TRIES FOR SPEEDWAY RECORD

Louis Meyer

Only active entry to win the Indianapolis 500-mile Memorial Day race twice, Louis Meyer of Huntington Park, Cal., will try this year for a third victory. No driver has won three times.

Meyer Has Good Chance To Set Racing History

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., May 14—Louis Meyer, only active double winner at Indianapolis, won't even hazard a guess on who might win the 500-mile classic over the Indianapolis Motor Speedway May 30.

"I used to be able to pick them," Louis said, "but the way things are now I'd be out on a limb. No one actually is able to pick a winner out of this year's field—for 95 percent of them are capable of winning. It was 'I always like that in days gone by, take it from me.'"

Louie can make history himself if he is lucky enough to push his fast charger over the finish line a winner on Decoration Day. It would make him a triple winner and it is likely to be some years before any one else could turn the same trick.

He has brought his car from Huntington Park, Cal., which he says he worked on most of the winter. It was almost 'oo new when he brought it to Indianapolis the first time last year. Most of his colleagues thought he had handicapped himself by arriving so late at Indianapolis last year that he hardly had time to break in his car.

Louie is undisturbed over the fuel limitation of 42 1-2 gallons this year, he says. The new Meyer car will not use over 40 gallons during the race and this, he said, will leave him a margin of two-and-a-half gallons.

About This And That

BY THE SECOND GUESSER

(BULLETIN)

The track meet between Circleville, Chillicothe and Bexley, scheduled at 3 p. m., has been postponed because of rain and wet grounds.

Catch V. Its May 25

It would be a good idea for high school athletes to hang around town Saturday, May 25, because Elmer Reger, newly-elected coach, will be in town that day. For how long we do not know, but unless something happens between now and then he will be here to get acquainted with some of the boys.

Ner Discouraged

Reger, in a communication received today says despite reports of scanty football material he is not discouraged. "The set up looks pretty good to me," he writes, "regardless of the reported scanty material. I had the same thing at Orville and took it on the chin the first year. The second year we had a good team and this season the football team set a school record."

Turner Successor

Alfred Tanner, star end on the Wooster college team for three years, has been employed at Reger's successor at Orville. The new Orville coach is a native of Willard, Ohio.

Well-Pitched Games

Although taking a 3-0 lead in the first inning, the Red Birds were chilled at Milwaukee Monday, 10 to 3—Kloza, Webb and the other Brewer powerhouses went into action—There were some mighty well-pitched ball games played Monday in the big show—St. Johnson of the Reds gave the Braves five hits winning, 3-1; Bill Lee, former Bird, was too tough for the Braves winning 3-2 and giving seven hits; Bill Walker and Carl Hubbell each gave six hits in 10 innings, Durocher's homer winning for the Cards; Schooley Rowe was touched four times, blanking the Yankees; Wes Ferrell gave the Browns only five bingles dropping them to the cellar, and Cy Blanton, Pirate rookie, gave the Phillies only four hits.

Chillicothe Victorious

Chillicothe's track and field team capped its third district title by a row last Saturday at Athens.

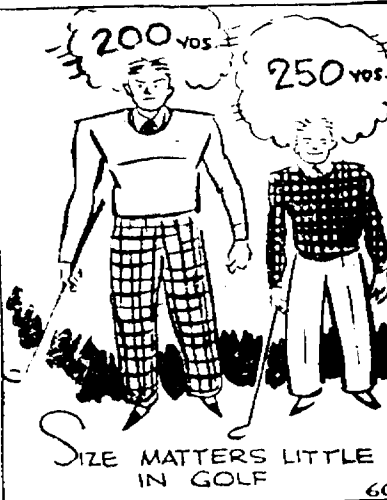

The Rotom youth nearly doubled the score on Ironton, their nearest rival—Marshall was third.

The Chillicothe team was scheduled to run here this afternoon against the Tigers and Bexley. In what should be an interesting meet providing rain does not interfere.

Secres in the meet were: Chillicothe, 80 1-3; Ironton, 45 1-3; Marietta, 44 1-3; Portsmouth, 27; Jackson, 19; Gallipolis, 8; and Washington C. H., 8, with Wells-falling to score.

GOLF FACTS

Number 600

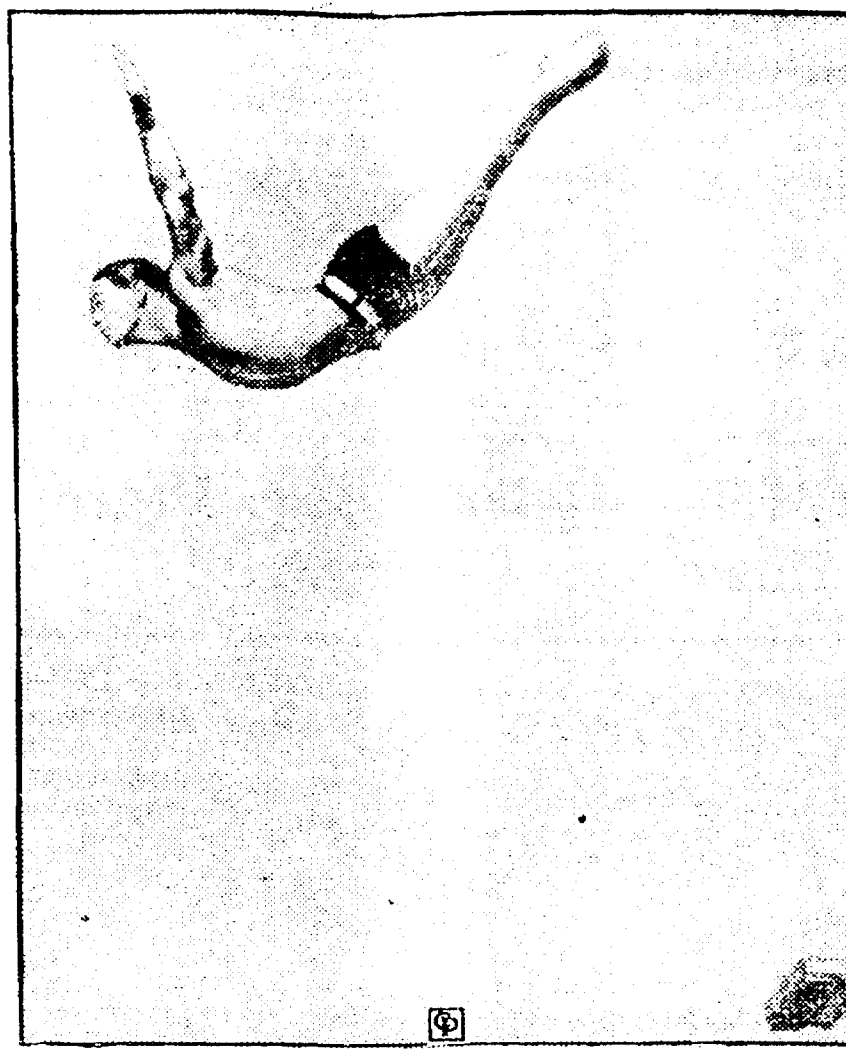

ALEX MORRISON says: I just had a round with Sidney Levinson of Great Neck, Long Island. I would say that he stands about five feet, possibly a shade less.

He has played less than five years. He can smack wood shots well enough to keep up with any of the pros. His drives were never less than 240 yards straight down the middle. It was a pleasure to see him perform, for I've always maintained that size means little if you have the right swing.

Levinson stands quite erect and takes a full windup of body and arms. His wrists are free to bend with the action of club and arms, with the result that he is able to whip the club down with the speed of a pro.

His short game is excellent so that he always gets around in the middle seventies with a good chance of being down close to seventy. Good golf requires skill, not strength.

other sponsors of the measure are vigorously opposed to this. They contend that the Board, to fulfill its mission as a "Supreme Court for Labor Problems," must be independent of political supervision or interference.

This logic prevailed with the Senate Labor Committee. Under the bill reported out the Board would have an independent status.

Chairman Bill Connery, of the House Labor Committee, acted differently. As a friend of Miss Perkins he favored acceding to her demand. Yet, he could not brush aside arbitrarily the pleas and arguments of the authors of the legislation.

He decided the issue in this statesmanlike manner:

When his committee met to vote on the bill the one-time Vandeville hooper proposed that he call up President Bill Green of the A. F. of L., and ask him what should be done. This was agreed to. Green was telephoned. He recommended that Miss Perkins be made boss of the Board.

When Representative Vito Marcantonio objected to following Green's advice, pointing out that he, like Connery, was a political not of Secretary Perkins, Connery placatingly replied:

"Oh, let's not quarrel over it. We can come to an agreement on it later in the conference committee."

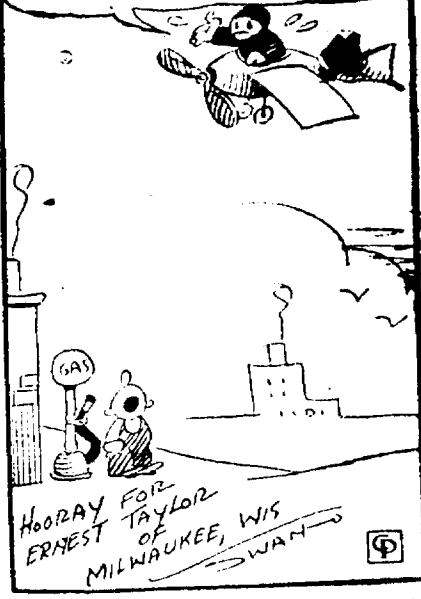

Birth Control

The dynamite laden question of birth control is causing a cut-and-dog fight behind the scenes on Capitol Hill.

The question at issue is Jim Farley's new obscenity bill, which would make illegal the sending of birth control literature through the mails, even when directed to physicians and hospitals. This is a much more stringent regulation than exists at present, and has aroused the bitter-end resentment of Margaret Sanger and birth control advocates.

On the other side of the fence, and championing the bill with equal vigor, are various church organizations.

The bill would not bar distribution of the book "Rhythm," Catholic-approved text on the subject, which the Post Office Department already has ruled to be mailable.

Mrs. Sanger is backing an amendment to the Farley bill which would exempt from its provisions contraceptive information sent to physicians, hospitals, and clinics. The amendment has been introduced by Representative Walter M. Pierce, of Oregon, father of six children, but its acceptance is highly doubtful.

Circleville Church Groups Observe Mother's Day With Pleasantly Appointed

Mother's Daughters of Presbyterian Church Enjoy Program

A social event of more than usual brilliancy was the annual Mother and Daughter banquet of the Westminster Bible class of the Presbyterian church, Monday evening, in the church social room. A large crowd was seated at the artistically decorated tables which were placed in the shape of a M. The stage was banked with baskets of spring flowers and the table centerpieces were purple and gold iris with gold candles.

The speaker's table was centered with a huge bowl filled with American Beauty roses which were presented to the mothers present by Fred Clark.

Mrs. Melissa Colvill offered prayer before the guests were seated. A delicious dinner was served by the hostess committee under the direction of Miss Florence Dunton, who was assisted by Mrs. Charles Smith, Mrs. Aletha Lucas, Mrs. Stanley Lewis, Mrs. L. E. Evans and Mrs. Paul G. Hart.

Waitresses serving the dinner were daughters of the Bible class members.

Mrs. Lewis, president of the class, welcomed the mothers and presented Mrs. Blanche M. Chan, toastmaster for the evening.

The opening number, a song on Motherhood, "The Beautiful," was sung by the entire group directed by Mrs. Harry Hoffman and played by Miss Abbe Mills Clarke.

Next was a toast to the mothers by the class president. A noteworthy response was given by a mother, Mrs. Clara Dresbach.

The surprise of the evening came when Mrs. Mutschman presented a radio artist, Dominic Bruzesse, known as "Uncle Don," heard each evening at 6:30 o'clock over station WENS in a children's hour. He has an unexcelled repertoire of magical tricks accumulated through his travels in various countries.

Appropriate and impressive were the vocal solos by Mrs.

Another Long Climbs

Rose Long

Huey Long has to share honors with his daughter in Louisiana. Rose Long, who is a sophomore at Louisiana State university, the senator's pet college, was chosen queen of the engineers' ball this year.

Harry Hoffman, She charmingly sang, "Songs My Mother Taught Me" by Antonin Dvorak and "Pirate Dreams" by Charles Hueter. Mrs. Clark accompanied her.

Accompanying music was played by Miss Ruby Chaffin. She beautifully interpreted, "Dirgo Serenade" and "St. Louis Blues."

The concluding number on the program was a birthday ceremony. An artistically decorated cake centered with a maypole and miniature dolls, was cut and presented to persons having birthdays in May and June. In conjunction with this Mrs. W. J. Graham, depicted the astrological aspects of persons born in these periods, their tendencies, likes, dislikes, and psychological traits.

Mrs. Graham, an expert on psychology, skillfully and entertainingly presented her subject and closed with a beautiful toast to the Modern Mothers.

This unusual program was presented by Mrs. Mutschman assisted by Mrs. George McDowell.

125 Attend Program of Von Bora Society Monday Evening

Another delightful Mother's Day banquet is in the history of the Von Bora society of Trinity Lutheran church following Monday night's annual May affair in the parish house, which was enjoyed by approximately 125 members, mothers and guests.

The dining room was beautiful with a profusion of spring flowers. Artistically arranged baskets and bowls of iris and vari-colored tulips were tastefully placed to advantage. An orchid and white color scheme was used in the attractive table appointments. White candles lighted the long tables, which were placed to form an M. Miniature mothers made of orchid crepe paper were clever favors and centerpieces of spring flowers were used. Mrs. Elgin Merriman and Mrs. Mary Bower were responsible for the decorations.

At 6:30 o'clock a three course dinner was served under the chairmanship of Miss Katherine Weller, who was assisted by Mrs. John Seall, Miss Ethel Stein, Mrs. Luther Walters, Mrs. Fred Boggs, Miss Helen Crist, Miss Magdalene Trump, Misses Martha and Margaret Crist and Mrs. Earl Hoffman.

After the dinner Mrs. Mary Bower, president, acted as toastmaster and opened the program with group singing. She then welcomed the mothers to which Mrs. Harry Grace responded in a pleasing manner.

The first number was a vocal selection, "The Story of the Rosary," sung by a trio comprised of Mrs. Malcolm Parrett, Mrs. William Fitzpatrick and Miss Helen Crist, with Miss Anna Schleyer accompanist.

The feature of the evening was a talk by a guest speaker, Mrs. G. C. Gast, of Columbus, who was well-received by her listeners. Mrs. Gast is president of the Ohio district of the Women's Missionary Federation, of which she gave the history. She told of the Federation's work and what it has accomplished to date.

Miss Schleyer, accomplished pianist, in her inimitable manner entertained with two beautiful numbers. She played Caprice by Brilliance and Chopin's Waltz.

This was followed by a reading, "A Letter from Mother," splendidly given by Miss Wilmine Haacker.

Mrs. Sensesbrenner with Miss Schleyer at the piano sang two appropriate and beautiful selections, "That Old Irish Mother of Mine" and "Mother."

The annual custom of presenting gifts to the oldest and youngest mother present was then observed. Mrs. Bower presented the gifts in behalf of the society to Mrs. Mary Stein, the oldest, and Mrs. Luther Bower, the youngest.

Mrs. Margaret Ebert, next to the oldest mother present, was presented with a bouquet of flowers.

Rev. George Troutman gave an interesting short talk followed by a reading, "A Picture of Mother," by Mr. Sensesbrenner. The program concluded with a picture representation of Mother's Day presented with slides and group singing.

Sunday School Class of Methodist Church Has its Annual Party

Sixty members, mothers and visitors enjoyed the beautifully appointed banquet, Monday evening, in the basement of the Methodist Episcopal church, when Mrs. George Marion's Sunday school class entertained with its annual Mother's Day party.

Pink and white were predominant in the lovely decorations. Tulips were in profusion throughout the dining room and a tulip was given each mother present. The tables were placed to form a triangle in each corner of which was a floor lamp. White candles in crystal holders tied with pink crepe paper bows lighted the tables on which were attractive pink tulip cups and pink and white mints. A beautiful flower box of nasturtiums was used in the center of the triangle formed by the tables. Mrs. Frank Kline Jr. and her committee were responsible for the pretty decorations.

Mrs. Barton Deming assisted by Mrs. Thaddeus Cromley, Mrs. Virgil Cress and Mrs. Dwight Steele served the delectable dinner at 6:30 o'clock.

Following the dinner hour Miss Elizabeth Tolbert served as toastmaster introducing the various numbers on the program.

Miss Virginia Nelson, president of the class, welcomed the mothers after which Mrs. George Marion, class teacher, presented gifts to two members, who are moving to other towns this summer. Miss Mildred Ruffin, a teacher, is going to Delaware and Mrs. P. S. Hetherholz will make her home in Cincinnati.

Mrs. Ervin Leist, a talented pianist, gave the first number. She played "The Rosary" and also the piano accompaniment for the next number, which was two selections by Miss Helen Yates, violinist. Miss Yates' solos were "Liebestraum" and "Wonderful Mother of Mine."

A group of vocal solos by Mrs. John Bragg, followed. Mrs. Bragg played her own accordion accompaniment.

The concluding number was an entertaining playlet, "Uncle Hiram's Cold" presented by several members of the Young Ladies' Bible class of the church.

Taking part were Mrs. F. M. McCollister, Mrs. N. E. Reichelderfer, Mrs. Lester Coste, Mrs. Mildred Karshner, Mrs. Carl Bennett, Mrs. P. S. Hetherholz and Mrs. Guy Pettit.

DINNER HONORS NEWLYWEDS

Covers were laid for sixteen guests, who were members of Mrs. Littleton's card club and their husbands. Mrs. Weart is a former member of the club.

Spring flowers decorated the rooms where the guests were assembled and white tapers lighted the small tables for the dinner at 6:30 o'clock.

The pleasure of the dinner hour was enjoyed throughout the evening of bridge and with the awarding of high scores favors to Mrs. Orion King and John Boggs, a guest prize was presented Mrs. Weart.

PATTERN 9372

One doesn't have to go to "great lengths" to be smart this season! Why a brief little cape turns the trick in a most inexpensive way. And what a lot of imagination you can put in a clever combination! You could, for instance, have that very simple little frock of natural color linen and choose a big flashy plaid linen for the cape, then pick out one of the plaid colors and repeat it in buttons and buckle! Or you could make the whole ensemble of cotton-homespun, the cape a contrasting color. And of course, shantung, sport silk (pastel or figured) would make a smart ensemble, too. Complete Diagrammed Marian Martin Sew Chart included.

Pattern 9372 may be ordered only in sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, 20, 30, 32, 34, 36, 38 and 40. Size 16 requires 3 7/8 yards 36 inch fabric.

TRADING AT HOME
THERE are any number of people living in and around Circleville who do not take seriously to the idea that it is best to trade at home. They take the position that it does not matter where they spend their money if they get their money's worth. They subscribe to the doctrine that the only obligation they owe the home town is to get what they can out of it.
Our idea of trading at home does not include buying goods from merchants who attempt exorbitant profits. It does not necessitate the acceptance of worn, dirty or bedraggled goods from merchants who think it is up to the community to keep them in business. It only means giving the local merchant a chance, and then buy what you desire, if he can reasonably meet other competition.
Every wage earner in Circleville, every business and professional man is dependent upon home institutions for his means of livelihood, whether it be in salary, professional fees, service—public or private—or from any other source. Money earned here should be spent here. The average citizen should be willing to do his part toward increasing the total volume of local business. Out of this sum is taken the prosperity for all of us. The larger it is, the bigger the average share. Every citizen that spends his dollars at home helps that much in making the business of the community bigger. He helps the town to expand, put on new growth and support new enterprises.
The local merchants, on their side, have duties in regard to this trade-at-home idea. They must keep the buyer well informed as to what they have to sell, and must maintain, at all times, the confidence of the buying public.
A good slogan for all of us to adopt is "Try Circleville First."

BORN WHILE GUNS BOOMED
VETERANS of the World War who recall quite vividly the lives they lived in the little villages of France while waiting for the transports to carry them home will read with mixed emotions this dispatch from Paris:
"War babies, 120,000 strong, streamed to the colors today to swell the number underarms in France to 420,000. In cities and villages throughout the land the chorists—born while the big guns of the World War were roaring—thronged railway stations, leaving for barracks for the start of their 18-month training period. Gay for the most part, the recruits sang and joked as they said "ou revoir!" Many carried gifts of candy, cake and delicacies.
These are the little babies that were carried about in the arms of their mothers or big sisters, or occasionally by a friendly doughboy back in 1918, in Les Laumes, or Semur, Poulligny or Esquelles, Baar-Sur-Aub or Flagny.
And now these youngsters are soldiers, clad in horizon blue and with hob-nailed boots, laden down with rifle and pack, one of those two-compartment canteens that hold both wine and water, and with the air of Europe charged with the spirit of war.
The news reports say that they were gay as they marched off to their cantonments, that they sang and joked and carried delicacies, the gifts of fond parents. This is all in accordance with traditions that date back to the days of Hannibal and beyond.
But what of the reverse side of the weaving—the mud and the agony, mangled limbs and blinded eyes, ruined lives, and lives ended before their time? It is not pleasant for men who have seen war to permit their minds to dwell upon the fact that the infants they knew during those relatively happy days after the armistice had been signed and home loomed as a prospect of the near future have now been caught in the entangling meshes of war.
Mae West's husband is the current "forgotten man"—at least to Mae.
When a police dragnet is employed, there's no other alibi quite so good as a job.
One fault in hanging is that it seems an object lesson only to those who get hanged.
"The Old Maid" is the Pulitzer prize-winning play. Who said this was the day of youth?
The army still has 7,027 horses awaiting the great emergency—when the time comes to pull the motorized artillery out of the mud.
Lloyd George says the nations of Europe have kept too much to themselves. As we recall it, though, they mixed quite freely for about four years.

STORMY LOVE
A YOUNG NAVY MAN'S ROMANCE
ABELLE BURNS GROMER
CHAPTER I
ALONG THE Nanking road the calls of ricksha coolies vied with the piping bedlam of eastern motor horns. A procession of students with banners had just passed so that Shanghai's busiest thoroughfare surged in the full sunlight with waves of traffic and humanity.
In a taxi that was taking every opportunity to make headway against the tide, Lieutenant Valentine Preston, U. S. N.,—attached to the gunboat Panny of the Yangtze patrol—leaned forward urging the driver to greater effort. This passenger who gripped a florist's box and a Chinese doll under one muscular, tawny arm, was a personable young man, although just now his square jaw was too tensely set, arrogant nostrils flared impatiently, and his eyes—their marine blue intensified by thick black lashes and his heavy tan—were fixed anxiously on his watch.
As the taxi darted in and out through each breach in the traffic, Val prayed that he should reach Janice Edding before her ship up-anchored. Inwardly cursing the habitual carelessness that had let him break last night's date with her, he told himself she must not sail without knowing how contrite he was. Not for the world would he have hurt her. And yet, he had shown her a discourtesy that a high-spirited girl like Jan would find hard to overlook.
He sickened him to think of it. Why the devil couldn't he have remembered that two months up-river put a man out of touch with the news? Why, when his ship returned to port yesterday, hadn't someone warned him that Jan was leaving China? Instead, he had nonchalantly let her forget their long-standing date for his first evening back in Shanghai. And then only a half-hour ago, when he had driven out to Frenchtown to apologize and try to make his peace, he was summoned to hear from a servant that Jan's father had his orders back to duty in the States. Indeed, it appeared the family had already boarded the President Taft, and was sailing—he stared down at his watch—Good Lord, in less than an hour!
Still a lot fogged as to how last night's blunder could have happened he recalled the exact details. His ship dropped anchor in the Whang-poo, he had intended to phone Jan the moment he got ashore. At five o'clock he had landed at the jetty, then started down the Bund to settle himself at the Astor for his three-day leave. The day, inopportunely, was a shipmate, he had dropped into the club bar for one drink and a look around.
There they had run across a group of Standard Oil men and news writers—an entertaining lot who were discussing the latest news from the States and Europe and the Japanese front—and as the drinks circulated laughter and conversation had blended into a gay camaraderie. Presently someone had urged him to the piano for one tune. After that, more than a gang gathered around the piano to rehearse the "Riff Song" and "Down With Burgundy" until they could put their over like a cold million. They had started on "Good King Wenceslaus" when he was identified by the mid-night chime of the clock. And it was too late to call Jan or do anything else but stick with the crowd and go on forgetting—
He was only vaguely aware of what happened later. He supposed he had gone to bed some time this morning. On awaking a while ago he had pulled himself together, remembered that he had to make his peace with Jan, and had driven at once to the Edding home to apologize. And now he had discovered Jan was leaving China; his head throbbed like a jungle drum; he wanted a drink like nobody's business; and he was alone. The motor approached the harbor front and Val leaned his little length forward to peer through the window. There he could glimpse the black rail of the President Taft anchored out in the swirling brown waters of the river where even now she seemed to strain at her chains. His already taut muscles tightened as the Nanking road swung around the turbulent authority of a huge Siki traffic policeman to debouch suddenly into the Bund. The taxi skidded to a stop. The young man leaped out to toss a bill and an answering grin to the driver, then turning, ran with swift, easy strides along the street and across the gangway to the custom-house jetty.

There, his course was abruptly halted by an expanse of dirty water widening between himself and the receding stern of the last tender carrying visitors to the President Taft. Nonplused, he stood for a dejected instant. Then as his finely built body swung about, his eyes leaped to where a lone sampan awaited a fare.
He strode toward it. But even as he did so he was diverted by the appearance of a girl—something very tiny, feet, and carrying a leopard-skin coat—when with her imperious little hand held up to the coolie, tripped from the opposite side of the jetty. Val had signaled the man first, but as the girl approached he instinctively gave way for the instant it took her to step into the craft and settle herself. He's belt. The last sampan and this young upstart had snatched it! As the small boat slid away he glared down into the hushed dark eyes that stared at him over a graceful shoulder, but when she drew him the faintest ghost of a smile. He found himself melting into an answering grin.
Nevertheless the grin soon faded, his debonair manner grew momentarily more subdued as his gaze vainly searched the neighboring floats for any other available water-taxi. Usually there were a dozen empty sampans to be whistled up; but today the little river craft all appeared engaged in carrying spectators to the racing races on the outer side. Beneath his low-rilled hat, brown hair, blue eyes burned with chagrin. He crammed florist's box and Chinese doll under his elbow, fumbled with impatient fingers for a cigar, lighted it, took a deep drag and exhaled smoke and a sotto voce flow of such service—and then not get the service?
If some stranger comes to your home and wants to examine your eyes, don't bother to call the sheriff—just call the cops and grab the old shotgun. Those fellows are "city slickers," if almost before you know it, if you step to listen to them, they'll walk away with half the house and all in their vest pocket.
You will never have but one pair of eyes. If they need attention there are plenty of reliable men with established reputations who will give you every consideration for a reasonable fee.
WHERE'S OLD OPPORTUNITY?
"Look here, Bogus," asked the colonel, "do you happen to know where Ink Johnson is just now?"
"Yassah! Sho, does, sah!" replied Bogus. He's asleep dis minute over dar in de shade of de lumberyard lookin' for a job, sah!"—Exchange.

Residents of Central Ohio are being warned of a new racket that is being worked by experts in that particular line in various sections. Over in Hocking-co, two men representing themselves to be "eye specialists on a government survey to correct imperfect vision," made a call on a prospective victim. One man approached the victim, an aged lady, and wanted to examine her eyes. Of course he found a serious malady, and called in his partner, a specialist, to confirm his diagnosis. They predicted total blindness unless something was done immediately and offered to operate for $250, or whatever amount of cash they could get.
In this particular instance the matter was taken under advisement by the woman and her husband, and later the incident was reported to authorities.
Some few years ago the same racket was worked through this section of Ohio and quite a number of people were duped into parting with hard-earned cash for which they received no benefit whatever.
The government is not sending men throughout the country to test the eyes of the citizens, but these racketeers find any number of people ready and willing to believe any story they tell, and they seem to be just as ready and willing to pay exorbitant fees to strangers. Barnum was right—except that his estimate of a "sucker" being born every minute was too low.
Why is it that we often question the capability of business or professional men that we know personally and see almost every day, and turn right around and hand out to some stranger about three times the legitimate fee for

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.
THE NEW MOTHER quite naturally regards her suddenly acquired responsibilities with considerable dismay. What is she going to do with this little living creature in order to keep it in the pink of condition? How is it to be fed, and how often? What is the technique of bathing it? What kind of clothes, and how many, should it wear? How long should it sleep? How much air should it have? Well, all these things are important, and there is a right way to do them, although for the mother's comfort it may be said that Nature is able to do pretty well with the slightest amount of encouragement, provided the baby is healthy from the beginning. Natural food, enough water, some sunshine and air, plenty of sleep, a cleansing bath, even if not too regular, and enough clothes to keep it warm, and it will thrive surprisingly.
Danger of Infection
The greatest danger to which the baby is exposed is one that is not frequently thought of—that is, the infectious diseases. And there is one thing that the new family must plan to do, which is to set a time for vaccinating the baby against smallpox and diphtheria.
The summary of all rules for the purpose of keeping the baby healthy, presents an outstanding list of screen favorites including Charles Starrett, Robert Warwick, Edward Van Sloan, Marion Shilling, Doris Lloyd, Helen Jerome Eddy, James Bush, Julian Madison, Broderick O'Farrell, and Jane Keckley among others. This new film is a screen version of Clifford Orr's brilliant detective novel and "College Humor" serial, "The Dartmouth Murders," a story read and enjoyed by hundreds of thousands. Charles Belden, who is well known for his successful "The Mystery of the Wax Museum," "Dr. X," and "The Ghost Walks," is credited with this picture's adaptation and screen play.

(Columbus Dispatch)
You are guilty of a criminal offense if you participate in the "dime chain letter" scheme, according to a ruling of the postal department. The plan comes under the head of a violation of the postal code. Swamped with questions as to legality of the scheme, authorities have come to the rescue of the burdened post offices with the decree that it is illegal and those involved are liable to arrest and punishment. This is expected to halt the practice that has caused consternation to those charged with handling the mails.
There is nothing new about the scheme, except that it has been adapted to a gambling racket. Chain letters have been known before, and probably will be known again. But if Uncle Sam can help it they will not longer be used in this manner and as a measure to stop the practice arrests are being made and will be continued as long as necessary.

Poems That Live
A MAN'S DOG
A man may lose his house and lot,
His friends may pass him by,
He may not have a thin dime left
To rent a slab of pie;
But if he owns the homestead
And saddest dog in town,
He has one pal whose honest love
Will never turn him down.
A man may kick his mangy pup
And curse him day and night,
Still will the faithful cur be true
And greet him with delight;
Life-long he sits upon the porch
And wags his happy tail,
To greet his lord when he shall come
From Congress or from jail.

DAVEY AND HOPKINS SHOWDOWN IS SEEN

COLUMBUS, May 14—Democrats viewed it apprehensively but Ohio Republicans today looked forward with unconcealed glee to the impending showdown between Gov. Martin L. Davey and Federal Relief Administrator Harry L. Hopkins.

Hopkins is accepting Davey's dare to "come to Ohio and show that you are a man, or turn and run like a coward and confess your contemptible character."

Davey wired him the challenge on March 18, when he filed criminal libel proceedings against Hopkins in Newark, O., municipal court, basing the suit on the latter's charge of a "political shakedown" of firms dealing in relief supplies.

Termel Assassin
"Base and foul character assassin" was the way Davey characterized Hopkins in a message delivered in person that same night to the legislature on the subject of relief. Hopkins had just taken over complete control of relief in Ohio.

But since these harsh words escaped Davey's lips Hopkins has risen to new eminence in the federal recovery picture, being named by President Roosevelt as one of the "big three" in the spending of the new $4,880,000,000 work relief appropriations.

And Ohio along with the other states doesn't know yet how large a slice of the huge appropriation it is to get nor who will have charge of spending it in this state.

Political observers agreed the governor is "on the spot" now that Hopkins has consented to go to Cleveland on May 24, to address the Citizens' League. If Hopkins is embarrassed by being served with warrant for his arrest, it was pointed out that he may find it difficult to overcome his ire at the state administration when the big federal relief pudding is cut.

Yet the governor cannot gracefully side-step the issue and "forget" to have the warrant for Hopkins' arrest served because of the bitterness with which he repeatedly held the federal relief administrator up to public scorn.

Gov. Martin L. Davey

and related what would happen to him if he ever had the temerity to come to Ohio.

Davey is Silent

Now Hopkins is coming and the governor doesn't know just what to do. Until he gives the matter grave consideration he would not say publicly what course he will follow.

His chief counsel, Prosecutor Kenneth Kreider, said at Newark the warrant would be served on Hopkins as soon as he entered the state. The customary procedure would be for him to then furnish bond for a later appearance in an Ohio court, but since criminal libel is not an extraditable offense Hopkins could not be compelled to return for trial unless he chose.

PLAY OF SENIOR CLASS TO START THURSDAY AT 8

"The Youngest," Senior class play to be presented Thursday and Friday at the high school auditorium, is different from the usual class drama in that it was written for professional players and has cost a considerable sum to produce.

The royalty on this drama, which was presented on Broadway in 1925, has just recently been lowered to a reasonable sum to make its production by high school players possible. However, it is still higher than that on any play ever presented here.

Another unique feature of this play written by Philip Barry is that the cast is confined to nine characters whose importance in the drama are nearly equivalent.

The plot is built upon the never-ending problem of the youngest of each family who is appressed and heckled by his brothers and sisters. The climax occurs when he rebels with the aid of the girl he loves.

Roy Bowen is directing a splendid cast including Otis Mader, Elsie Brehmer, Horace Gilmore, Lydia Given, Virginia C. A. S. K. E. Y. George Speakman, Carl Boggs, Dorothy Fohl, and Virginia Cady.

"The Youngest" has become a very popular drama in colleges and city high schools this spring. Among the places it is being presented is Ohio Wesleyan.

DOG'S MILITARY HONORS

WINNIPEG.—A 15-year-old dog was buried here with full military honors by the men of "C" Battery, Royal Canadian Horse Artillery. His name was "Old Bill" and he was so intelligent that he used to bow his head with other people during the two minutes silence of Armistice Day. They said he died of a broken heart because he loved the battery horses—and soon the battery is being mechanized.

SENATE READY TO BEAT HUEY LONG'S INQUIRY

N'Orleans Senator Says People Will Some Day Force Farley Probe

WASHINGTON, May 14—Although Senator Huey P. Long (D) of Louisiana charged Postmaster General James A. Farley with helping the Jam's Stewart Contracting firm, of New York City, twinkle the government out of $383,000 on its new federal courthouse there, the senate today appeared ready to refuse to investigate the cabinet officer.

Administration leaders opposed the investigation, asked by Long, on the ground it was inspired by hatred of President Roosevelt and by personal malice against Farley. They ignored the plea of liberal Democrats for an inquiry to clear Farley's name and prove Long's charges false.

Long predicted the people would force the investigation later even if the senate refused one now.

"I guess Jim Farley and that $4,880,000,000 work fund will be strong enough to defeat this resolution," said Long. "The administration doesn't want this investigation because they all know these charges are true. But the American people will not let them whitewash Jim Farley forever. They can kill this investigation but one of these days the people will make them hold an investigation. The American people won't start for a whitewash when they become convinced the government was swindled."

Want Stillman to Provide Money From Huge Fund to Maintain Service

COLUMBUS, May 14—Ohio cities, financially crippled by shortage of operating revenue, pleaded with federal relief authorities today to provide federal aid to maintain municipal service departments under the $4,880,000,000 work relief program.

Turned down in their appeal for aid under the present relief program, officials of the Ohio League of Municipalities appealed to C. C. Stillman, federal relief administrator for Ohio, for help during the remainder of 1935.

No Provision

Stillman, who advised Mayor Henry Worley, Columbus, president of the Municipalities' League, that there is no provision for allocating federal funds to cities for ordinary municipal duties, indicated today that federal authorities are considering a special provision in the new work relief program to provide financial relief to municipalities.

Worley and mayors of several other Ohio cities have appealed through Stillman to FERA administrators at Washington for permission to use relief workers on county relief rolls to augment crews of street cleaners, park workers and rubbish collectors.

They also asked for emergency police officers and emergency firemen.

Worley pointed out that scores of cities have been forced to reduce personnel of these service and safety departments to a bare minimum to stay within municipal budgets for the current year.

VOLUNTEER LABOR SOUGHT FOR CANAL DAM JOB

RELIEF TIE-UP IMPEDES WORK

Ideal Recreation, Fishing Ground to be Provided By Sportsmen

In spite of the fact that work on all projects in Pickaway county employing relief labor has been suspended, due to a controversy between the county commissioners and C. C. Stillman, Ohio's federal relief administrator, work on the canal dam three miles south of the city is being carried on with volunteer labor.

This announcement was made Tuesday by H. E. Betz, president of the Pickaway county Farmers' and Sportsmen's association, following a conference of officers and members of the organization, at which time plans were made to complete the project as soon as possible.

The project was sponsored by the sportsmen's organization to provide a recreation ground and a large body of water to be stocked with fish. Quite a bit of labor and material for the construction of the dam were donated, and funds were provided by the organization for preliminary work.

To Make Ideal Place Relief labor has been employed to build the dam, with the cooperation of federal and state departments. When completed, water above the dam will be raised approximately eight feet and will back up in the canal bed more than two miles, making an ideal place for the propagation of fish.

"We are carrying on the best we can under the circumstances," stated Mr. Betz. "When relief labor was discontinued, the dam was about 80 per cent completed, and there is much work yet to be done. We are calling for volunteers to devote as much of their time as possible to completing the job and would like to get it completed as soon as possible as we have a large shipment of fish coming with which to partially stock the lake. The relief labor was discontinued as no funds were available to Pickaway county when the county commissioners failed to agree with the state relief administrator on methods of operating the general relief and employment program in this county."

Mr. Betz and many others active in the organization are spending quite a bit of time on the construction job and would appreciate any help given them.

Irwin to Ask Stillman

tion Monday afternoon to answer the letter Stillman sent here instructing them to request aid if they wanted it.

Remain Divided They remained divided on the question, but Irwin and Ralph May standing against an out-of-the-county director and against a relief while Edward Wright agreed that if necessary to get relief he is in favor of abiding by Stillman's wishes.

There was a growing feeling today that the county should do something to retain federal help which this month expires to about $14,000 and will reach a point about equal to that as long as it is necessary. Many persons object to the order of Irwin and installation of the new relief system but they object even louder to withdrawal of all federal relief.

The committee is under the impression that the county plan would handle all the county relief if money but just how this is to be done is not known. A person of influence in the county is expected to day disclosed that the poor relief fund is now averaging $15,000. The county has a total of $12,000 for the year 1936-1937 but it cannot be touched until the legislature takes some kind of action. The money derived in a sale of Section 3 lands and other sources could be handled only with approval of the state relief commission. Since there is no state relief commission any longer the money, although it belongs to the county legally, cannot be used for relief until permission is voted.

Result Awaited The result of the vote of the "poor relief committee" to the effect of Stillman and the committee is being awaited here with interest.

"The acceptance of our proposal means that the Chevrolet division of General Motors will make arrangements to open the Toledo plant at once."

Terms of the agreement, announced after the vote, provided for a four-cent-an-hour wage increase, raising the minimum to 54 cents; additional adjustments; time and one-half for overtime in excess of 48 hours a week and for Sunday and holiday work; and safeguards against lowering of wages when men are shifted from production work during slack seasons, so that no reduction shall be larger than 10 per cent.

Others Foretold

As a result of the vote, it was understood that the threatened strike of 600 union workers at the Flint, Mich., Buick Co. plant, scheduled for today, had been forestalled, and that other Chevrolet plants closed by the Toledo walkout, including the largest General Motors unit, the Fisher Body Co. plant at Cleveland which employs between 8,000 and 9,000 persons, would reopen within a few days.

The Toledo strike, which affected more than 20,000 workers, was declared April 23.

Their leader was "CH" H. Day, a Plainview, Texas, farmer. In keynote speeches, they declared they had come to Washington to thank the administration for the AAA program and to let the nation know they wanted that program to continue.

Once inside Constitution hall, they whooped it up for the administration's farm program by raising cheers from the different state delegations as they waited for the speakers. When the state delegations were not cheering, yells would rent the air from individuals. The meeting sounded like a cross between a rodeo and a prizefight.

"But some day," Miss Kilgannon insisted, "I will get a chance to act. It will be only a small part—maybe a half dozen lines, but I will be prepared. And that will be the end of stand-in and leg closeups."

Two other beautiful stand-ins in Hollywood are Ann Doran, Amarillo, Tex., blonde, and Joyce Williams, Fresno, Cal., brunette.

Miss Doran stands in for Virginia Bruce, the star, while the photographers arrange lights and focus cameras, while Miss Williams is stand-in for Alice Brady, the star of screen and stage.

"We would rather be stand-ins than extra girls' any day," explained Miss Doran. "Some day we're going to get a chance in the movies for big work. Many members of our profession are college graduates and dramatic students, and they all hope that sometime, sooner or later, they'll get a chance to act, instead of merely to stand in."

Although unsung and unheralded the off-stage heroines have to spend an average of $50 a month for marcel, to keep their clothes in perfect condition, manicures and other feminine necessities.

"For our own future," said Miss Williams, "we must have wardrobes that include everything from house dresses to evening gowns. Also shoes and hats in keeping
